INCOME TAXPAYER LOSES SUIT TO STOP PUBLICITY

District of Columbia Justice Holds Commissioner May Not Be Enjoined From Making Tax Public

DISMISSES PLEA OF BOSTON MAN
Sustains Blair in Giving
Out Name, Postoffice
Address and Amount of Income Tax Paid.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The Commissioner of Internal Revenue may not be enjoined from making available to public inspection the name and postoffice address of an income taxpayer as well as the amount of tax paid, Justice Hoehling held today in the District of Columbia Supreme Court.

The decision was handed down in an opinion granting the motion of Commissioner Blair to dismiss the suit for an injunction filed against him by Gorham Hubbard of Boston to prevent the publication of the amount of tax paid by the petitioner.

Duty of Commissioner. Whether public inspection of tax returns carries the right of publication in newspapers or otherwise, the Justice stated, was not involved in the proceedings before the court, but paragraphs A and B of section 237 of the revenue act of 1924, relating to opening the returns to the public, he added, were valid and enforceable.

Should it develop, the Justice suggested that section 2167 of the revised statutes forbidding publication be upheld by the courts as valid and enforceable, then the publication of Hubbard's tax return would entitle him to appropriate redress under that statute.

It is the duty of the Commissioner of Internal Revenue, however, the Justice asserted, to make available for public inspection the name, address and amount of tax when the tax has been determined under the law.

Lists Printed in 1864-71. The Court based its decision on the opinion of the United States Supreme Court in the case of Flint v. Stone Tracy Co., which involved the constitutionality of the corporation tax law of 1909 as amended by the act of 1910. In that case, the validity of the legislation was attacked on various grounds including the claim that provisions for inspection of the returns filed by corporations were violative of the fourth amendment. The United States Supreme Court rejected that claim saying "Congress may have deemed the public inspection of such returns a means of more properly securing the fullness and accuracy thereof. We cannot say this feature of the law does violence to the constitutional protection of the fourth amendment and this is equally true of the fifth amendment, protecting persons against compulsory self-incriminating testimony."

While this decision related to a corporation tax law, Justice Hoehling declared its language was broad enough to involve the present case and was controlling on the court.

It is a matter of history, the Court pointed out that income tax lists were printed and published during at least part of the period between 1864 and 1871, when the Civil War tax was operative and that such publication as now, provoked a controversy. Whether the matter ever proceeded beyond public discussion the court was not advised and had not been able to find any adjudicated case involving the question at that time.

Appeal to Supreme Court in Kansas City Decision to Be Expected. KANSAS CITY, Dec. 3.—It was announced by the Kansas City Journal-Post last night that District Attorney Madison received instructions from Attorney-General Stone late yesterday to file immediately an appeal to the United States Supreme Court from the decision of Federal Judge Albert L. Reeves in quashing indictments against Walker S. Dickey, owner, and Ralph Ellis, managing editor, of the paper, for publication of income tax returns.

Following the opinion of Judge Reeves, Madison informed Attorney-General Stone of the decision by telegraph.

William Hayward, United States District Attorney in New York, telegraphed Mr. Madison for copies of the demurrers and the opinion given in the case. A similar request was received from attorneys for the New York Herald-Tribune which yesterday entered a plea of not guilty to an indictment charging illegal publication of income tax returns.

BRITISH JUSTICE DENOUNCES BOOKMAKER IN DENYING HIS CLAIM IN BLACKMAIL CASE

Hints That Criminal Proceedings Will Be Brought Against Robinson for His Part in Affair Involving Rajah.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch, London, Dec. 3.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—The Midland Bank won the case brought against it by Charles Robinson, bankrupt bookmaker, for £125,000 (£625,000) yesterday. Lord Justice Darling, after hearing arguments from Sir John Simon for the bank, and Lord Halsbury for Robinson, dismissed the claim with costs against Robinson and exonerated him, broadly hinting that, but for the jury's verdict, whereby neither Robinson nor his wife were found to be conspirators in the "Mr. A." now known to be Rajah Hurri Singh, they would both join the other conspirators in the dock.

"I cannot conceive any tribunal," said Lord Darling, delivering judgment, "the King's bench above all, allowing a person to come into court and claim part of the proceeds of a theft which took the form of making a threatened man pay for the defilement of the claimant's wife."

"This is an action which should never have been brought, and would never have been brought except by a man with a mind thoroughly debased. It is always held that nothing should be done under orders of the King's bench which would be a moral behavior among the people."

Robinson, but not his wife, attended to hear the Justice's decision and the court was full of eager spectators. Lord Darling ruled that "to allow a man to come into court and claim money due when his wife had been caught with another in misconduct—to claim it simply on the statement that he intended to give it to his wife—his wife in name only—search her further—is utterly against the practice and tradition of the court and against the best interests of the public."

Hints at Prosecution. The sensation of the final day of the famous case, when Lord Darling's hint that despite the verdict of the jury, Robinson and his wife are not out of the judicial net, was not lost on the public.

"I have ordered," Lord Darling said, "that the papers in the case are not to be parted with, in case the public prosecutor should require them. Previous to the trial had been that Capt. Arthur was selected by the Government to be the Rajah's aid-de-camp. In England, Arthur participated in the Rajah's life of gambling, race tracks and assisting in the selection and purchase of horses."

Capt. Arthur Says He Was a Victim in the Rajah Case. Capt. Arthur, who was the Rajah's aide-de-camp, was yesterday in the dock, denying his part in the case. He said he was a victim of the Rajah's scheme.

Whether the Robinsons and Montague Noel Newton will be arrested and made to stand trial or after the trial of Capt. Charles Arthur, the Rajah's former aide-de-camp, and William Cooper Hobbs, who cashed the check, cannot be learned. There are rumors that Newton will be permitted to turn state's evidence.

If this is so, Newton is making a good thing out of it, since he got £30,000 from the Midland Bank for testifying in this case; he admits he got £44,000 out of the Rajah's aide-de-camp's share of the loot in a Paris poker game shortly after the division of the swag.

Capt. Arthur Under Arrest. Capt. Arthur, who was the Rajah's aide-de-camp, was yesterday in the dock, denying his part in the case. He said he was a victim of the Rajah's scheme.

The British Government is still hiding its head like an ostrich in the judicial sand, but may have to admit formally that "Mr. A." is Rajah Hurri Singh before Capt. Arthur can be extradited from France.

In the Paris court yesterday Maitre Gide, as attorney for the accused Captain, demanded the name signed to the check which the aide-de-camp is alleged to have cashed. The French lawyer insisted that the name must be revealed before extradition can be granted.

This claim admittedly worries British officials, but at the colonial office Gide's further claim that Arthur as an Irishman cannot be extradited by England is ridiculed.

"Our King is his King," it was stated, "and nothing in the Irish treaty helps him. If a Canadian committed an offense in London and fled to foreign parts he can be brought back; so why not bring an Irishman back?"

Arthur Professes Ignorance. Capt. Arthur is quoted in Paris dispatches as having declared: "I am absolutely innocent. I never had in my possession any check drawn by the Prince and still less have I benefited by it. Mad was thrown at me in the trial because I was absent, but the truth will soon be out. I am anxious to appear before a British Judge. The affair of 'Mr. A.' is a political affair."

Capt. Arthur is a member of an ancient Irish family, claiming descent from the kings of Munster. Forty-eight members of the family have been Mayors of Limerick since 1440; two ancestors represented Limerick in the British Parliament; another was made Bishop of Limerick in 1642.

The Captain was born Sept. 24, 1882, and owned an estate in County Limerick, Ireland. His younger brother, Desmond, was killed in an airplane accident in Scotland in 1912, his death leading to litigation regarding his estate in the Irish courts.

Keen About Horse Races. Capt. Arthur himself is a keen sportsman. He ran a small racing stable, which partly led to the Rajah's friendship. He received his commission first in the pre-war militia, but transferred to "special officers' reserve" on the abolition of the militia.

In 1909 he married Rose Violet Rochefort, only one of a trio of beautiful Irish sisters, with whom he made a big game-shooting expedition to India, where he first met the Rajah. He apparently was swayed by the time, since his wife in divorcing him later claimed his income was £7000 (£35,000) a year.

On the outbreak of war in 1914 Capt. Arthur left his wife and children in India and returned to England, where he obtained a commission as Lieutenant in the Territorial Artillery.

Returning to India, he got attached to the Rajah's staff, becoming so intimate with him that when the Rajah visited England in 1918, it is now learned, he insisted upon Arthur's appointment as aid-de-camp, saying he would not have anybody else.

Previous to the trial had been that Capt. Arthur was selected by the Government to be the Rajah's aid-de-camp. In England, Arthur participated in the Rajah's life of gambling, race tracks and assisting in the selection and purchase of horses.

INDIA OFFICE PERMITS PUBLICATION OF NAME, RAJAH SIR HARI SINGH

LONDON, Dec. 3.—The India office today lifted the embargo on the publication of the name of the Eastern potentate who was referred to in the sensational Rohrbach case only as "Mr. A."

The name, it was stated, is Rajah Sir Hari Singh, nephew of the Maharajah of Jammu and Kashmir.

BORAH MADE HEAD OF SENATE FOREIGN RELATIONS BODY

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Senator Borah of Idaho today became chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, succeeding the late Senator Lodge. At the same time two new members were named on the committee, one from Connecticut and Edge of New Jersey.

Borah was one of the Republican "irreconcilables" in the League of Nations fight; has opposed American adherence to the World Court unless the tribunal is dissociated from the League of Nations; and is an ardent opponent of the State Department's policy of non-recognition of the Russian soviet government.

In order to succeed to the Foreign Relations chairmanship, Senator Borah was obliged to relinquish the chairmanship of the Senate Education and Labor Committee. Senator Phipps of Colorado succeeded him as chairman of that committee.

Senator Johnson of California was named to succeed the late Senator Colt as chairman of the Immigration Committee. In accepting the place, Senator Johnson retired from membership on the Military Committee and was succeeded by Senator Willis of Ohio, as chairman of the Insular Committee.

LITTLE APPLAUSE AS MESSAGE IS READ

Let's face it, the change of the basis of valuation, the Roosevelt plan, the two houses was simultaneous. There were comparatively large crowds in the galleries who applauded the Roosevelt plan, but the President's recommendations than did the members of the House and Senate.

Just before the message arrived, the House of Representatives had passed a bill for a holiday recess during Christmas week and for a one-day layoff at New Year's. Belief was expressed that if the program were adopted, since France and Britain had right of way throughout the session, all of them will be in the hands of the President before the end of the year.

The reading of the presidential message required more than an hour. In contrast to the occasions when presidents have appeared in person, there was not a ripple of applause in the Senate from the beginning to the end of the reading.

In the House, however, the President's message was applauded, as was his statement opposing cancellation of war debts. Both Democrats and Republicans joined in the applause when the message called for the necessity of conserving the Navy's oil supply.

Legislators Comment Favorably on President's Message. "It is a very good message," as far as it is concerned," said Senator Brookhart of Iowa, today. "We have not reached the stage of prosperity indicated by the President's message. The program we have laid down is excellent, however, if the administration will only have it carried out by specific legislation."

"It is a powerful message," said Senator Curtis of Kansas, now Republican floor leader, who said about the President's message. "I can agree with most of the facts the President laid down on the subject of economy and agriculture."

The economy plea by the President and credit taken for reduced appropriations at the last session under the Republican majority brought a statement from Congressman Byrnes (Dem.) of Tennessee, ranking member of the Appropriations Committee, that "the President's message brought about through causes which cannot be attributed to any particular practice of economy on the part of the administration. In his budget message, the President commended, said Byrnes, on a reduction of $28,000,000 for national defense."

"His advisors, the Secretaries of War and Navy, and the Treasury, have issued statements urging increased appropriations for both these departments."

BRITISH LION TO ROAR AGAINST U. S. WAR CLAIMS

Churchill Plans Strong Stand Opposing Payments to America Under Dawes Plan.

FEEL FRENCH "SOLD OUT" TO WASHINGTON

Debt-Funding Plans, Without Similar Arrangements With Britain, Arouses Indignation in London.

By JOHN L. BALDWIN, London Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Deep, although so far unvoiced, feeling exists in official quarters here against the claims against Germany to be put forward by the United States; the idea of funding the American debt without making it clear that a simultaneous action on the same terms will be proposed regarding the French debt to Britain.

The postponement of the meeting of the allied Finance Ministers in Paris until Jan. 6 was due to British insistence that the Franco-American debt "feelers" and American claims against Germany, were verified here today. It can be stated with authority that Winston Churchill, as Chancellor of the Exchequer, does not purpose to permit France to make any arrangements whatever with the United States for the payment or scaling down of the French debt without equal treatment, both as regards terms and times of payment, for Great Britain.

Say France "Sold Out" to U. S. Churchill's visit to Austin Chamberlain at the Foreign Office today was to discuss this subject. There is much feeling against the French for not keeping London informed as to the progress of any deal, discussed in Paris, with Washington, and, privately, British officials declare heatedly that France has sold out to the United States at Britain's expense in order to insure the flotation of French loans in Wall Street.

Determined opposition will be manifested in London to claims for German reparations which it was understood that the British Government would not support. Great Britain, as well as other allies, recognizes, under a previous agreement, the partial priority of the American claim of about $50,000,000 (approximately $250,000,000), representing the costs of maintaining the American army of occupation. This will not be contested, since France and Britain already have received similar payments.

Reports that the U. S. State Department is prepared to claim $1,000,000,000 of reparations (the American claim will be about $250,000,000) out of the Dawes payments by Germany, was received here first yesterday. The American claim, even the apparent conf-nation that the claims will be $250,000,000 is received with indignation.

From inquiries in well-informed quarters, I am able to indicate the grounds upon which the British opposition to these claims will be put forward. These will fall under two heads. First, questions of equity, one common sense and equity. Secondly, questions of law.

U. S. Holds German Property. Leaving legal aspects aside, it will be argued that German property sequestered in the United States amounts to enough to pay American claims in full. If this is to be handed back to Germans, that is America's affair, but no reason is seen here why this should be done at the expense of claims put forward by the Allies who bore the brunt of the war and who will receive a share in a title of their legitimate claims, owing to German inability to pay.

It is understood that the United States asks out of the Dawes plan payment for damages incurred while the United States was in control, such as Lusatia compensation and even payment for losses suffered by American business firms in Germany. There is a special clause in the Versailles treaty enabling the United States to recover herself for such damages out of German property sequestered in the United States upon the outbreak of the German-American war.

Turned to the legal aspects, it is pointed out that the United States failed to ratify the Versailles treaty and later concluded a special treaty with Germany which provided that all the advantages accruing to the United States under the Versailles treaty were reserved to the United States.

But this implies, Churchill will urge in Paris that the disadvantages accruing to other Powers under the Versailles treaty also should operate to the detriment of the United States and the principal disadvantage regarding reparations claims is the review and scaling down of these claims as often as it chooses to be the Reparations Commission.

Allied Claims Suffered. The British claims, like those of

by the Government that there was any considerable graft in that instance. The Government's contention is that there was a conspiracy to defraud, involving all the preparations for systematic plundering on a grand scale. That this did not actually come off, the prosecution holds, was due to the intervention of other elements.

Chief among these elements, in the Government's theory, was the quarrel which occurred between Forbes and Mortimer over Mortimer's wife.

The cost of the Northampton Veterans Hospital originally was estimated at $3,000,000 contracts for building the foundation, and erecting the superstructure, were let separately. The key to the bidding on the superstructure, however, it was the concern which had built the foundation enjoyed a favored position in the bidding on the much larger contract for the superstructure; favored, because it was already on the ground and familiar with conditions.

Government's Contentions. The Government contends that Forbes agreed first with Black and

Thompson to juggle bids so as to award them the contract for the foundation, with the intention of going through the same performance when the second contract was let.

The Pontiac Construction Co., of which the Government claims Black and Thompson were joint owners, got the foundation contract, but did not get the other.

Mortimer took the stand again and told about conversations which he said took place in the Fairmont Hotel in San Francisco between Forbes, Black himself and Charles Hurley, head of the Hurley-Mason Construction Co., which, according to Mortimer, also was to have a finger in the pie.

Forbes, said Mortimer, assured Black and Hurley that the contractors who would be permitted to bid on the construction of the hospital at Livermore, Cal., would be carefully hand-picked by himself.

Personal Poke at Forbes. "Hurley asked Forbes," the witness continued, "if it wouldn't be a good idea to have the architectural work on the buildings also done by private architects, rather than by Government architects. Forbes said he was willing to do that. Hurley said he had a son, A. H. Stem of St. Paul, Minn., who would like to get the contract. Forbes agreed to give it to him."

Mortimer took another witness stand to testify that he had been asked what had become of the telegram which Mortimer claimed to have received from Thompson on the preceding day, in response to a similar question, replied: "It was among the papers which Forbes and Mrs. Mortimer took from my room."

It is Crim's theory that this bitter personal quarrel upset the plans to give the contract to Black and Hurley. They were thrown out. Again, prosecution contends, the plan for Forbes to give the work to his son, A. H. Stem, was a result in exposure of their scheme.

The superstructure contract to another firm.

The machine in which Little and Miss Denehey were riding crashed into the automobile of Charles Lindhorst of Columbia. Lindhorst's machine had stalled a few minutes before the crash and he was attempting to start it when the accident occurred. He estimated the other machine was going about 50 miles an hour.

Laborer Employed by City Run Down and Killed by Auto. Bernard Winterhalter, 35, of 4508A North Broadway, a laborer employed in the City Water Department, was killed at 11:45 o'clock last night when struck, as he was crossing North Market street, near Grand boulevard, by an automobile driven by Frank Weaver, 23, of 2625A North Spring avenue. His skull was fractured.

Weaver told police Winterhalter stepped directly in the path of his machine, the left front fender of which struck him and knocked him to the pavement. Weaver said he

FAITH OF PUBLIC IN DOCTORS URGED TO FIGHT DISEASE

Head of Rockefeller Foundation Says Americans Should Look Upon Themselves as Patients

CITES CARE GIVEN

Tells Audience Here Why

"When the American people learn to accept the theory that they are patients, and that what they are talking about is not so far as health is concerned, so far as a free-living people with an inalienable right to do as we please, we will have made the most important step in the control of disease," said Dr. George Vincent, president of the Rockefeller Foundation, New York, before the Missouri Social Hygiene Association at Gatesworth Hotel last night.

"I would like to start a movement to prevent the vaccination people who object to it," he continued. "It has been conclusively proved that vaccination prevents the disease, but why interfere with the people who make up their minds? Why not leave them alone and see what happens?"

More money is spent in the United States for public health than in any other country of the world, but for other countries, said Vincent, for instance, he said, Scandinavian countries, less, talk less and suffer less. The reason, he explained, is that the people of those countries are accepted as experts in their own opinions, while Americans people do as they please and spend millions in public health work.

Two Classes of Disease. Dr. Vincent divided disease into two classes: 25 per cent controlled by public health measures, while 65 per cent depends on the individual's personal effort.

"When we take as good care of our bodies as we do of our cars, we will have made an appreciable advance in the control of disease," he declared. "Human body, like the automobile, has its little premonitory knock. But like the knock of the automobile, it predicts serious trouble. You take the motor to the mechanic. Why not your body to the doctor?"

There are two important branches of public health: sanitation, or the external control of disease, and hygiene, or the operation of the individual in looking out for himself.

Can Control Disease. "It has been conclusively proved that smallpox, malaria, typhoid can be controlled by a public health program. This category should be placed in diseases which 10 years were treated as things apart, but with the influence of the modern age of education and control until now they are a part of the public health program of every community."

"A few more years and we have in every city clinics for mental diseases, and sex education will be a part of the program of every school. Look back at years and recall the horrors which you once thought of as ideas of education and control of the signs of change."

"When you can treat the diseases just as you treat the car, you will be making progress. In some of our cities there are clinics for diseases where each day long of men, women and children are treated. The only reason is that the American people are not educated in things, the South American not."

Dr. Vincent praised the work of the League of Nations in the national control of disease, planning a plan, supported by Rockefeller Foundation, which health statistics are exchanged through Geneva every two years.

Author of Several Books. Dr. Vincent came to St. Louis yesterday particularly for the Hygiene Association, which is part of a Social Hygiene Institute being held in St. Louis. Dr. M. J. Egan, who is the director of the national League of Nations, is directing the Institute.

Hospital Contract

at. Hurley said he had a friend, H. Stem of St. Paul, who would like to get that hospital. Mortimer took another vegetable personal threat at Forbes when he asked what had become of the hospital which Mortimer claimed to have received from Thompson on the preceding day, in fact, he received it in October, 1922, he was thrown out. Again, the prosecution contends the plan was for Forbes to give the work to the hospital and Black and Thompson, who were in the hospital, to take over the work. The hospital was to be attacked and feared that all this might result in exposure of their scheme. The hospital was to be attacked and feared that all this might result in exposure of their scheme.

When the American people learn to accept the theory that doctors and sanitary engineers know what they are talking about, and that so far as health is concerned, we are a free-born people with an inalienable right to have the best of health, we will have made the most important step in the control of disease," said Dr. George E. Vincent, president of the Rockefeller Foundation, New York, before the Missouri Social Hygiene Association at Gateway Hotel, last night.

"I would like to start a movement to prevent the vaccination of people who object to it," he continued. "It has been conclusively proved that vaccination prevents smallpox, but why interfere with the people who make up their own minds? Why not leave them alone and see what happens? Forbid them vaccination and they will come clamoring for it."

More money is spent in the United States for public health than in any other country of the world, but not because America is ahead of other countries, said Dr. Vincent. For instance, he said, the Scandinavian countries legislate less, talk less and suffer less. The reason, he explained, is that in these countries doctors and engineers are accepted as experts in the public health, while in America people do as they please and spend millions in public health work.

Vincent, president of the Rockefeller Foundation, New York, before the Missouri Social Hygiene Association at Gateway Hotel, last night.

"I would like to start a movement to prevent the vaccination of people who object to it," he continued. "It has been conclusively proved that vaccination prevents smallpox, but why interfere with the people who make up their own minds? Why not leave them alone and see what happens? Forbid them vaccination and they will come clamoring for it."

More money is spent in the United States for public health than in any other country of the world, but not because America is ahead of other countries, said Dr. Vincent. For instance, he said, the Scandinavian countries legislate less, talk less and suffer less. The reason, he explained, is that in these countries doctors and engineers are accepted as experts in the public health, while in America people do as they please and spend millions in public health work.

Two Classes of Disease. Dr. Vincent divided diseases in two classes—55 per cent can be controlled by public health measures, while 45 per cent depend on the individual's personal effort.

"When we take good care of our bodies as we do of our motor cars we will have made an appreciable advance in the control of disease," he declared. "The human body, like the automobile, has a little premonitory knock and like the automobile the automobile they predict serious engine trouble. You take the motor car to the mechanic. Why not take your body to the doctor?"

There are two important branches of public health work, sanitation, or the external control of disease, and hygiene, or the cooperation of the individual in looking out for himself.

Can Control Disease. "It has been conclusively proved that smallpox, malaria, yellow fever and typhoid can be controlled by a public health program. In this category should be placed the social diseases which 10 years ago were treated as things apart. Of late, with the influence of the great war, they have rapidly been transformed until now they are a part of the public health program of every community."

A few more years and we will have in every city clinics for social diseases, and sex education will be a part of the program at every school. Look back a few years and recall the horror with which you once thought of the idea of sex education and consider the change.

TESTIMONY IN MOTLOW CASE TO BEGIN TOMORROW

List of 47 Men Qualify as Jurors to Try Wealthy Distiller on Murder Charge—State to Strike Off 15, Defense 20.

Testimony in the trial of Lem Motlow, wealthy distiller of Lynchburg, Tenn., for the murder of Clarence T. Pullin, Pullman conductor, on an outboard L. & N. train March 17 last, will begin at 9:30 a. m. tomorrow in Judge Hamilton's court.

There was a recess in the case today, while attorneys for the State and the defense studied the list of 47 prospective jurors which remained last evening, after the questioning of the venire was completed. Of these 47, the State will strike off 15 and the defense 20, leaving the 12 who will serve as the jury.

In the questioning of prospective jurors, former Judge Vital W. Garcke, one of the defense lawyers, asked each man whether he would be prejudiced against a man because he was engaged in the business of distilling whisky, at the time when that business was lawful. He also asked whether the veniremen would be prejudiced against a man "because he might have taken a drink or two before this unfortunate occurrence."

The questions on which the lawyers for the prosecution, Circuit Attorney Sidener and Rowland L. Johnston, placed most emphasis, were whether the veniremen were willing to vote for capital punishment, and what part of the country each man came from. The purpose of the latter question seemed to be to learn whether any of the venire was from Tennessee or any state farther south.

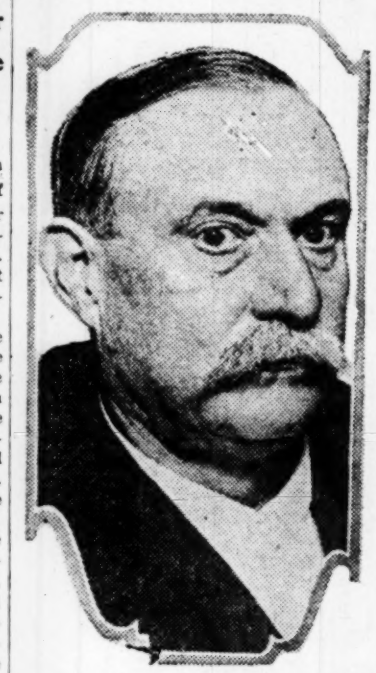

The venire was told yesterday, is expected to plead that the shooting of the conductor or a white man, might be utilized in the national defense.

Those who play on the fears of the nation in an effort to swell the military establishment were rebuked by the President in the following language:

"We have been constantly brought to engage in competitive armaments. Frequent reports will reach us of the magnitude of the military equipment of other nations. We shall do well to be little impressed by such reports or such actions. I believe thoroughly in the army and navy, in adequate defense and preparation. But I am opposed to any policy of competition in building and maintaining land or sea armaments."

This was supplemented with a gesture of good-will toward other nations. Asserting that he would resist any effort to go back to the old standards, the President said he was "especially solicitous that foreign nations should comprehend the candor and sincerity with which we have adopted this position."

WEALTHY DISTILLER ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

was an incident, in fact, an accident, in Motlow's defense of himself against the murder porter. The State will endeavor to show that Motlow was drunk and noisy, and that neither the porter nor the conductor gave him any provocation, except by a proper effort to quiet him.

Thomas B. Harvey, former Circuit Attorney, said today that the law firm of Harvey & Baer was representing the Pullman Co. in the case, but would act only in an advisory capacity to the attorney, and that he would not appear in court as a special prosecutor.

Police officials are unflinching in their praise of the work of Cooper and his two men in this case. When the assignment was given Cooper he thought a bit and concluded Dowell might be involved, because Dowell is alleged to have committed previous petty robberies, and because he answered in general the description of one of the robbers who held up Mrs. Stickney.

Dowell is under appeal bond from a five-year penitentiary sentence for a St. Louis robbery and has two other robbery charges pending against him in the county.

But the detectives couldn't find Dowell. Cooper got word to his quarry in a circuitous way that if he would "see the Sergeant" he could get help in one of his county cases. Word came back that Dowell would visit the Sergeant last Friday afternoon. But he was on the alert at police headquarters all morning. After noon Dowell strolled in and requested the "help."

What he got was a cell in the holdover and a little later Mrs. Stickney had identified him as the man who furnished a revolver and talked about having seen her in Clayton before. Thereupon the prisoner confessed and named Brown as his companion.

Brown was arrested by Mrs. Stickney at first said he looked like the second robber, and that his Ford looked like the one the holdup men used, but later positively identified him.

May Recover Jewelry. Continuing the investigation, Sgt. Cooper is hopeful that the stolen jewelry can be recovered. He has been informed that the robbers were told of the valuable ornaments of Mrs. Stickney, and the three robbers had held an umbrella over the victim's head. It was asserted at the parole hearing that the handle of the victim's umbrella was of a different color than that described by the victim to the police. The umbrella disappeared from the evidence room before Plaujan's trial and conviction. The latter has been released from the penitentiary a short time before on parole from a 10-year sentence for murder.

NEGROES INDICTED BY COUNTY JURY IN STICKNEY HOLDUP

Two Prisoners Had Been Identified by Woman as Pair Who Stole Jewelry Worth $15,000.

Two negro prisoners have been indicted by the St. Louis County grand jury for the robbery of $15,000 in jewelry and $55 in cash from Mrs. W. Arthur Stickney, near her home on the St. Louis Country Club grounds the evening of Nov. 10.

Both men have been identified positively as those who robbed her, by Mrs. Stickney. The holdup was at 7 o'clock in the evening on Ladue road, west of Police road. Mrs. was driving home alone and was stopped by the two negroes, who drove their Ford car across the road in her path.

Those indicted and addresses they gave are: Alonzo Dowell, 28 years old, of 3139 Lawton boulevard, and Homer Brown, 28, of 809 Elm avenue. Webster proves Dowell told detectives after his arrest and identification, "You got me right," but Brown has asserted his innocence.

Testimony in connection with the robbery was given before the grand jury yesterday by Mrs. Stickney, Sgt. I. Cooper, head of the squad of negro city detectives, and two of his men.

Detectives' Work Praised. Police officials are unflinching in their praise of the work of Cooper and his two men in this case. When the assignment was given Cooper he thought a bit and concluded Dowell might be involved, because Dowell is alleged to have committed previous petty robberies, and because he answered in general the description of one of the robbers who held up Mrs. Stickney.

Dowell is under appeal bond from a five-year penitentiary sentence for a St. Louis robbery and has two other robbery charges pending against him in the county.

But the detectives couldn't find Dowell. Cooper got word to his quarry in a circuitous way that if he would "see the Sergeant" he could get help in one of his county cases. Word came back that Dowell would visit the Sergeant last Friday afternoon. But he was on the alert at police headquarters all morning. After noon Dowell strolled in and requested the "help."

What he got was a cell in the holdover and a little later Mrs. Stickney had identified him as the man who furnished a revolver and talked about having seen her in Clayton before. Thereupon the prisoner confessed and named Brown as his companion.

Brown was arrested by Mrs. Stickney at first said he looked like the second robber, and that his Ford looked like the one the holdup men used, but later positively identified him.

FURIOUS DRIVE ON FOR PAROLES, GOV. HYDE SAYS

Some Politicians Trying to Go Over Heads of State Penal Board, Executive Discloses.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch. JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 3.—A furious drive for paroles for convicts now in the State penitentiary has been started in several quarters. Gov. Hyde said today, apparently with the expectation that the rules regarding clemency to convicts will be let down in the closing weeks of the Hyde administration, paroles granted with a free hand.

Gov. Hyde declared to reveal the sources of the pressure for paroles, but indicated that in some instances friends or politicians seeking paroles for convicts had sought to obtain action from the Governor without recourse to recommendations by the State Penal Board. This board, acting as a parole board, passes upon all applications for paroles or commutation of sentence, made by the parole board.

"They Will Be Fooled." "They will be fooled if they expect to go over the head of the board," Gov. Hyde said, "for no parole or commutation of sentence will be granted that is not on the list recommended by the board."

Approximately 80 recommendations for parole or commutation of sentence, made by the Parole Board, are on the Governor's desk at present. They have piled up in recent months as the Governor has steadily followed his former policy of granting an average of two paroles a week. Since July 1, last, he has granted 15 commutations of sentence and nine paroles.

But his success as a clemency man and speaker has not detracted from "Charles's" interest in music. Delivering an average of 375 sermons a year, he closes each with a vocal selection of religious songs. A modulated tone in speaking and constant care of his voice has enabled him to preserve the popularity which he has brought to the State.

Despite the number of his addresses and songs, "I am certain that the Almighty has had much to do with it," he said.

Seek Naturalization. The entire Taylor family has moved to the United States and each has taken out first papers for naturalization.

"I consider myself as good an American as any who are descended from those who came here on the Mayflower," "Charles" declares in discussing his foster fatherland. "America opened her doors to me and gave me my opportunity. I am an American and I must live Americanism as he must live Christianity and I strive to live according to the tenets of the Bible and the ideals of liberty, justice and truth."

The audience at the church Sunday night pleased "Charles" greatly and he smiled in a satisfied manner when some 50 chairs were used to supplement the seating capacity. He does not assume the "holier than thou" attitude, nor does he dwell upon the "wells of the day."

'BOY EVANGELIST' FIRST MAKES THEM SEE THEY'RE LOST

Charles Forbes Taylor, Now Conducting Campaign in St. Louis, Tells of His Methods.

"A prophet is not without honor save in his own country," quotes Charles Forbes Taylor, the "boy evangelist of England," a by-name which survives as today, when audiences were hard to obtain in his native land. He now is 25. Churches which refused him permission to conduct evangelistic campaigns before he came to America now are clamoring for him, he says, and he plans to spend a few months there during the summer.

Taylor began a two weeks campaign Sunday night at the Delmar Baptist Church. His father, acting as his manager, and his brother, Lawrence, who accompanies him in his singing, complete his party.

Crossed in Steerage. Securing an engagement with a large church in Philadelphia 11 years ago, then 14, and Lawrence, another son, 11, took steerage passage and arrived in America with $1.50 and a firm resolve to make good. With "Charles" as the boy calls himself, singing, Lawrence accompanying him and the father preaching, with occasional sermons by the singer, the trio booked for a year ahead.

"Charles" became more and more popular as a preacher and several years ago he replaced his father as the principal speaker of the party. The father now is manager, a position which, he said, requires his undivided attention.

But his success as a clemency man and speaker has not detracted from "Charles's" interest in music. Delivering an average of 375 sermons a year, he closes each with a vocal selection of religious songs. A modulated tone in speaking and constant care of his voice has enabled him to preserve the popularity which he has brought to the State.

Despite the number of his addresses and songs, "I am certain that the Almighty has had much to do with it," he said.

pulpit by any nocturnal disturbance I saw the need. I wanted to fill the need."

When "Charles" was 9 years old he began preaching, earning the by-name, "boy evangelist of England," which since has clung to him in his maturity. He was born at Bedford, which, also, is the birthplace of John Bunyan, author of "Pilgrim's Progress."

Through reading and travel he has gained his education, although he has attended several American colleges for short terms.

Lieut. KAISER RETURNED TO DETECTIVE BUREAU DUTY

He Had Been on Detached Duty Helping Government in Mail Robbery Case.

Lieut. Robert Kaiser, who was assigned to duty in the North Market Street District in the early part of 1923 at the request of Chief of Police O'Brien, was returned to duty in the Detective Bureau today by President Brockman of the Police Board.

Kaiser and Detectives Bush and Heggeman arrested a number of the nine men convicted last month at Quincy of the Staunton mail robbery. "Dinty" Kaiser and his pals were the men convicted of the crime.

At the request of the Government, Kaiser has been on detached duty working on the mail-robbery cases since they were committed. He and his assistants have been praised for their work by Government officials. At present he is helping to prepare the case of the Government for the trial next month of Colbeck and his associates on charges of having robbed a mail truck here of $240,000 in April, 1923. Ten jury members in the first trial of the case.

MISSING DEPOSITION IN UNION ELECTRIC SUITS FOUND

Testimony of Late William Fay Is Basis of Damage Actions Totaling $110,280.

The missing deposition of William Fay, former chief engineer of the Union Electric Light & Power Co., who died last Wednesday, has been found by deputies in the Circuit Clerk's office. The deposition relates to an alleged arrangement by Fay to pay a LaCade Gas Light Co. employee to decline electric contracts in order that the business might go to the Union Electric, which has a higher rate.

Suits involving $116,280 damages are pending against the Union Electric as a result of Fay's statements. They were filed by five St. Louis firms for lost rate payments. Trouble damages are asked for under the State anti-trust act.

The deposition was reported missing last Saturday, after plaintiff's attorney had announced that because of the death of the principal witness, the deposition would have to be used.

Calles Gives Reception and Dinner and Obregon a Luncheon to Americans.

Copyright, 1934, by the Press and Publishing Co., Inc., New York World and the Post-Dispatch.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 2.—Yesterday was "Samuel Gompers day" in Mexico City, beginning with a reception by President Calles to the American Federation of Labor leader, delegates and friends, at the national palace in the morning. Later, former President Obregon entertained Gompers and the federation delegates at luncheon in the famous sunken gardens near the city. At night Gompers dined with the President at the palace.

The reception in the morning was featured by pledges of friendship of American labor for Mexico by Gompers, for whom Santiago Iglesias, president of the Porto Rico Federation of Labor, acted as interpreter. Similar declarations also were made by President Calles, for whom Robert Habermann of New York interpreted. President Calles spoke of his intention of working for peace with the United States and world peace through the allied workers of all countries.

"I have the greatest confidence," said President Calles, who wore a badge of the American Federation of Labor, "that the friendly relations which ought to exist between two peoples, separated only by an imaginary line, will from today remain an accomplished fact. United and hand in hand, the workers of the two countries will conquer happiness not only for the two peoples, but for the whole world. The present Government will try with all its enthusiasm, power and faith for the deliverance of the working classes of Mexico and work for the happiness of the workers of the whole world."

WOMAN FREED FROM JAIL BECAUSE OF SIX CHILDREN

Welfare Workers Intercede for Third Time for Mrs. Mary Potos, East St. Louis.

After four days in jail at Murphyboro, Ill., Mrs. Mary Potos of 1223 North Twenty-third street, East St. Louis, was returned to her home and six small children today.

Welfare workers had interceded with Federal Judge English to commute a sentence imposed on her last week for a liquor violation. Mrs. Potos had been fined $250, but being unable to pay was sent to jail Friday night. She could have secured her liberty as a pauper after 30 days.

It was the third time social workers had interceded in her behalf because of the children. Twice before liquor was seized at her confectionery, but on previous occasions the charges were dismissed. Social workers said if she was arrested again they would take steps to place the children in an institution.

$50,000 DAMAGE BY FIRE AT CAPE GIRARDEAU, MO.

Lumber Plant, Three Dwellings and Six Barns and Garages Destroyed.

CAPE GIRARDEAU, Mo., Dec. 2.—Fire today destroyed the retail plant of the Riverside Lumber Co., three frame dwellings and six barns and garages, causing damage estimated at $50,000. A light rain which damped the roofs of nearby structures aided in checking a spread of the flames.

The fire started in a barn owned by T. J. Miller. Heat from the blazing barn melted telephone cables, and when residents of the vicinity attempted to summon the Fire Department they found their telephones useless.

Eight horses and one mule perished in the Miller barn.

One communist band bombed the home of Karl Einbund, former Minister of Home Affairs, who had a narrow escape from death.

SWEETEN MURDER CASE GOES TO TRIAL

Defendants, Woman and Former Pastor Charged With Killing Her Husband.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch
MOUNT VERNON, Ill., Dec. 2.—The trial of Lawrence M. Hight, former Methodist minister, and Mrs. Elsie Sweeten, for the murder of the woman's husband, Wilford Sweeten of Ina, began here this afternoon. Selection of the jury will continue until tomorrow afternoon, when the case will go over until next Monday. This adjournment is made necessary by other court business which the lawyers in the case must attend to.

Several hundred persons packed the courtroom. Mrs. Sweeten, dressed in black, sat near Hight, but was not seen to speak to him or look at him. She was very sober, while Hight was inclined to smile and make attempts at sociability.

The first of the prospective jurors questioned was excused because he said he did not believe in capital punishment. Another was excused because he was 78 years old, though willing to serve. It appeared that the obtaining of a jury might be a slow process.

Hight and Mrs. Sweeten have repudiated their confessions, which were to the effect that they conspired to poison Sweeten and Hight's wife, and that she administered the poison to Sweeten and he to Mrs. Hight, causing the death of both last fall.

Will Ask Death Penalty.
The State will ask for the death penalty for both defendants in the Sweeten case, which is being tried first, as it is considered stronger against the two defendants than the case in which they are jointly charged with the murder of Mrs. Hight.

A motion of Hight for a change of venue, and a motion of Mrs. Sweeten for a severance of her case from Hight's, have been denied recently. Mrs. Sweeten, in her motion, she says that Hight had allied himself with the State in the effort to convict her.

Hight also sought to plead insanity, but Dr. Frank Fry of St. Louis, brought here by the State as an alienist, pronounced the prisoner sane. This may not preclude a plea that Hight was insane at the time of the commission of the crimes.

Woman Has Been in Jail.
Mrs. Sweeten has been in jail until today at Nashville, a neighboring county seat.

Judge J. C. Kern, who presides in the court here, has been on the bench eight years, and has imposed death sentences in previous cases. Joseph Frank Allen, newly-elected State's Attorney, has retained his predecessor, Frank G. Thompson, as special prosecutor, because of Thompson's greater familiarity with the case. Nelson Layman of Duquoin is Hight's attorney, and Robert E. Smith of Benton represents the woman. More than 100 witnesses have been summoned, most of them from Ina, a small town in this county. A number of the witnesses are members of the church of which Hight was pastor, and Sweeten and his wife members.

Opposes Negro Filling Federal Job
WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—Senator George, Democrat, Georgia, at a conference today with President Coolidge requested that Henry Lincoln Johnson, negro, Republican National Committeeman for Georgia, be prevented from dispensing Federal patronage.

RHEUMATIC PAINS GO QUICKLY WITH ALESSANDRO VOLTA'S DISCOVERY

No Medicines to Take.
Results Guaranteed by Local Druggists

An amazing new treatment for Rheumatism has been received in this country from Italy. This new scientific discovery promises to put an end to terrible rheumatic suffering in even the most stubborn cases. Alessandro Volta, the well-known Italian physicist, for whom the electric volt has been named, discovered a scientific combination of certain ingredients in the form of a fine powder that is intended to be a powerful and active Uric Acid solvent. This discovery he has called Volta. It is not to be taken internally, but is shaken into the shoes or stockings and is intended to be absorbed into the blood through the pores of the feet. This absorption is aided by the fact that the soles of the feet contain over 10 times the number of pores found in any other part of the body.

So remarkable and rapid have been the results from the use of Volta powder, both in this country and in Italy, that the American distributors have authorized local druggists to dispense Volta with an unqualified guarantee of relief from the use of the very first package or your money will be refunded.

If you suffer from rheumatic pains, Sciatica, Lumbago, Gout or Neuralgia, you owe it to yourself to try this remarkable scientific treatment. It is absolutely harmless and will not cost one cent if you do not receive wonderful relief.

You can get a box of Volta from such good druggists as Wolff-Wilson Drug Co., Judge & Delp Drug Stores, Johnson Bros. Drug Co., Kettler Drug Co.

SHEATSLY GETS ANONYMOUS "CONFESSION" OF MURDER

Pastor Turns Over Letter, Written in Crude Hand, to Police.

By the Associated Press.
COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 3.—A letter purporting to be a confession of the murder of Mrs. Addie Sheatsley, wife of the Rev. C. V. Sheatsley, pastor of Christ Lutheran Church of Bexley, whose cremated body was found in the furnace of the parsonage on Nov. 17, was turned over to the police authorities by the pastor today. He told police he received the letter, which was unsigned, about two weeks ago. It was postmarked "Buffalo, N. Y." and written in a crude hand. The writer stated that he had committed the act and that any effort to convict any other person for the offense would be futile. At the bottom was drawn a rough tracing of a skull and cross bones.

Possessed with what he considers positive proof that the woman was dead before her body entered the furnace, Prosecutor King is undecided as to what shape the investigation will now take. Reports submitted to him yesterday by Chemist C. F. Long and Pathologist H. M. Brandon dealt with an analysis of two guinea pigs which were cremated alive in the same furnace from which Mrs. Sheatsley's body was taken for experiment purposes. The analysis revealed a high carbon-monoxide content in the blood and lungs. An earlier analysis of blood from the lungs of the pastor's wife by chemists showed no such signs. The experts contended that had Mrs. Sheatsley entered the furnace alive she would have breathed long enough to inhale the poisonous gas.

The Rev. C. V. Sheatsley, pastor of Christ Lutheran Church of Bexley, a wealthy suburb, and professor of religion in capital university, has resumed his classes at the university. He, with other members of the family have been questioned repeatedly since the tragedy.

FOGS AND SMOKE CLOUDS
HAMPER RIVER NAVIGATION

Rivermen Report Having Considerable Trouble Because of Combination of Vapor.
River fogs, combined with heavy smoke clouds drifting from burnish brush along the banks, are giving trouble to Mississippi River navigators, with the result that river traffic is being badly hampered.

These combination fog and smoke clouds are densest from Memphis to New Orleans, but they also are hindering traffic from Memphis to St. Louis. River captains are ordered to take no chances of collision, and as a result the boats spend a good deal of their time tied to the bank. Fogs are not infrequent on the Mississippi at this season, but usually they lift during the morning. But the addition of the smoke has resulted in the fogs lasting most of the day.

DRYS CLAIM BIG LEAD IN NEXT CONGRESS

Methodist Board Indorses Bill for Independent Prohibition Enforcement Bureau.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—In the Sixty-ninth Congress there will be 319 dry votes in the House, 111 wet votes and five which it is impossible to classify with certainty, and in the Senate there will be 74 dry votes, 31 wet votes and one vacancy, according to estimates presented yesterday to the annual meeting of the board of temperance, prohibition and public morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, by Dr. Deets Pickett, research secretary.

Bishop William F. McDowell, president of the board, and Clarence True Wilson, general secretary, also addressed the meeting which adopted resolutions endorsing the Crampton and Stalker bills. The former, which would set up an independent prohibition enforcement bureau, was indorsed "as placing upon the prohibition unit greater responsibility for prohibition enforcement," while the latter was described as being designed to "increase the penalties for prohibition law violation and for other commendable purposes."

Other resolutions condemned prizefighting on Government reservations and that participated in by professional prizefighters; condemned lynching; indorsed prohibition of transportation through the mails of "indecent" magazines and books specializing in sex appeal, called for stricter enforcement of the eighteenth amendment in the District of Columbia, and congratulated the Secretary of the Treasury and the Prohibition Commissioner for "checking liquor smuggling."

Dr. Pickett, in his report, attacked indecency on the stage and in print.

There are 20 magazines in the United States specializing in sex appeal," he reported. "Massachusetts has handled this situation better than any other State, and it is believed that a system of co-operation with Government officials can be perfected during the coming year based upon the policy of Massachusetts which will drive most of these magazines out of the mails."

TEST OF RIGIDITY OF WOOLWORTH BUILDING

Purpose Is to End Rumors That It Sways in the Wind.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch. NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—The Woolworth Building, the tip of which is 796 feet above the street, is to be tested to settle, once for all, the rumors that its tower sways in the gales that sweep lower Manhattan.

Early in 1913, immediately after completion of the structure, tests made throughout two hours of an 87-mile wind showed it did not budge a particle. If the wind caused even a vibration, the engineers reported, it was so slight it could not be measured.

However, there have been so many inquiries as to the truth of stories that the Woolworth Building "swings in the wind" that scientific observations now are to be made of such precision that a deviation, from the perpendicular, however slight, will be detected. Cass Gilbert, architect who designed the building, said yesterday preparations have been made for the test when the next strong wind occurs.

"As a matter of fact," he said, "we know the building does not sway. But it was decided to set at rest, conclusively, any possible notions to the contrary. That such notions gain some sort of currency is shown by inquiries which come now and then even from architects."

Tested With Piano Wire. The method of testing used in 1913 was to string a piano wire the vertical length of five of the uppermost floors to which were attached instruments to record vibration of a departure even of a fraction of an inch from the perpendicular. The instruments, delicate as they were, Gilbert said, detected no swaying.

The new tests will be different. Mr. Gilbert declined to say whether they would involve the use of transits, by which engineers would be able to measure with extreme accuracy by sighting a low and a high mark and then measuring the angle between.

Gilbert called attention to the fact that all structures of whatever material, are subject to expansion and contraction by heat and cold.

Allowance for this, of course, is made in all modern construction. The Washington monument, which is 555 feet high, he estimated, is about 5 1/2 inches taller in summer than in winter.

Weight Is 100,000 Tons. The Woolworth Building is the tallest building in the world, the only structure which is higher than the Eiffel Tower in Paris—a steel skeleton whose apex is 954 feet from the ground.

The Woolworth Building, standing on a lot approximately 152 feet by 197 feet, weighs about 100,000 tons as the seasons. This weight, it is figured, is increased by wind pressure at times to about 123,000 tons. The building was designed to withstand a wind pressure of 250 miles an hour. The gale during which the former tests were made at times reached 90 miles an hour and was one of the strongest recorded here.

The building rests on 69 concrete pillars reaching to bed rock, more than 100 feet below the surface.

UNION ELECTRIC SEEKS PERMIT FOR $5,000,000 BOND ISSUE

Company Would Reimburse Treasury for Operating Revenues Spent for Improvements.

JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 2.—The Union Electric Light and Power Co. yesterday filed an application with the State Public Service Commission here for permission to issue $5,000,000 in new bonds to reimburse the treasury of the company for a part of approximately $9,000,000 which has been expended out of operating revenues for improvements in the last five years.

The commission will set a date for the hearing of the application. Louis H. Egan, president of the company, told the commission that the bond market was exceedingly favorable at this time, and that the new issue of 5 per cent 30-year bonds could be marketed at 95. Under the terms of the mortgage on the Union Electric property, the company is entitled to issue bonds up to 45 per cent of the amounts expended from operating revenues for betterments and improvements.

LEITER LOSES MORE LIQUOR, THIS TIME TO DRY AGENTS

Massachusetts Home of Chicagoan Raided on Illegal Transportation Charge.

By the Associated Press.

BEVERLY, Mass., Dec. 2.—Federal prohibition agents yesterday raided the home of Joseph Leiter, of Chicago, at Beverly Farms, and seized 600 bottles of choice liquors which they charged had been illegally transported to the estate within two months. The liquor was valued at more than $4000.

The attention of the police was focused on the place by the report that robbers a fortnight ago, had stolen $50,000 worth of liquor from the estate during the absence of Allen J. Harris, a night watchman.

2 EXPELLED BUCKETERS SHOT

Man Who, Wife Says, Lost $61,000 in Dice Games, Sought.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Search is being made for Noah Aaron as the result of the shooting in the Knickerbocker Building, Times Square, yesterday, of Samuel and Louis Liebster, formerly principal members of J. B. Clark & Co., a Consolidated Stock Exchange firm expelled in 1921 for bucketing. Of four shots fired, three took effect. Samuel Liebster is in a grave condition. Louis is regarded as out of danger.

The shooting is believed to have been the outcome of stock transactions, as the brothers apparently were engaged in trading in unlisted securities.

Mrs. Aaron told the police, however, that her husband had lost $61,000 during the last year in Broadway dice games. She said he sold his Philadelphia jewelry business for $50,000 and lost that and $11,000 of her money. The brothers said Aaron had shot them. Office employees heard angry voices followed by shots. Then, they said, a man came out of an inner room, pistol in hand, and walked out.

BRIDGE PROBLEM IS DISCUSSED BY KIEL

Mayor Refers to Plans for Interchange of Use of Spans in Address in East St. Louis.

Proposals for putting Eads bridge and the municipal bridge to work more efficiently were mentioned by Mayor Kiel in an address before the East St. Louis Lions Club at luncheon at the Community House of the neighboring city yesterday.

The Mayor referred to the plans under consideration by the Terminal Committee of the Chamber of Commerce, although in his talk he did not mention this body. The committee has not completed its work.

Upper decks of both bridges will be used for pedestrians and vehicles, the Mayor related, if the arrangements are completed, as he hopes they will be within six months, and the lower deck of

Eads Bridge will be used by trolley cars, while the railroads operate on the now unused lower deck of the municipal bridge.

"Let's acquire these bridges for free avenues of entrance to our cities," urged the chief executive of St. Louis. "We can do it if clubs like yours will do for this bridge problem what the civic clubs of St. Louis did for the bond issue." He asked that East St. Louisans help to have eliminated the $40,000 annual tax collected from the city of St. Louis by St. Clair County on the east end of municipal bridge, saying it should be exempt from taxation, as it helps both cities and costs St. Louis $1300 a day.

Mayor Kiel praised Mayor Stephens of East St. Louis, who introduced him at the luncheon, for co-operation in opposing the northeastern (Gerhart) railroad approach to the municipal bridge.

Man Falls Dead in Store.

Police are seeking to identify a man about 45 years old, who walked into the confectionery of Charles Blando, 1125 North Seventh street, at 7 p. m. yesterday and called for a bottle of milk. As Blando turned to get the bottle, the man fell to the floor dead.

The only articles found in his pockets was a half-pint bottle of liquor.

Workmen Injured.

Jack Codd, 47 years old, 2741 Cote Brillante avenue, employed on the new culvert for the River des Peres at Delmar boulevard and Rosedale avenue, suffered a fractured spine and other injuries yesterday when struck by a heavy weight which fell from the boom of a steam shovel from which the bolts of a pulley had slipped.

SPENCER TRYING TO CLEAR TRACK FOR 1926

Efforts to Find Post for Barrett Draws Attention to Political Maneuvers.

By CURTIS A. BETTS.

Senator Spencer's activity in trying to find a Washington job for Attorney-General Barrett at the expiration of Barrett's term next month has directed attention to the political maneuvers far in advance of the senatorial campaign in Missouri in 1926. Spencer is now engaged in the occupation of trying to eliminate all prospective opponents for the Republican nomination.

He was quick to support the suggestion that Dwight F. Davis, Assistant Secretary of War be appointed to the Cabinet to succeed Secretary Weeks, whose retirement is expected. He has picked a place as Assistant Attorney-General for Barrett, and has issued statements
to the effect that there was no doubt that Barrett could have one of the jobs under the Attorney-General if he would take it.

Further Efforts Recalled.
It will be recalled that this is the second time Spencer has interested himself in Barrett. Two years ago, when he sought to keep Barrett out of the senatorial race,
he wrote Barrett that Attorney-General Daugherty was to retire from the Cabinet and that Barrett could have the job. Spencer was saved from making good on his promise by Daugherty's failure to resign at that time.

If Davis is appointed Secretary of War and if Barrett can be induced to be an Assistant Attorney-General, there will remain only
Gov. Hyde, and possibly R. R.
Brewster of Kansas City, in Spencer's way for renomination.

The prospect that Hyde will oppose Spencer has worried the Senator not a little, though his mind
has been relieved somewhat by reports since the election that Governor-elect Baker is not permitting Hyde a voice in appointments, and that there is no reason to believe that the State administration influence will be thrown to Hyde in 1926.

Brewster has given no evidence of an intention to again seek the senatorship, though some of his close friends have expressed the opinion that if the situation looks favorable as the time for the campaign approaches he probably will file for the nomination.

Barrett Silent.
At the present time, however,
the interest centers in Spencer's effort to sidetrack Barrett, who has refused to comment on the interviews Spencer has given in Washington concerning the matter.
It is known that Barrett for several months has had under consideration several desirable connections with legal firms in St. Louis, connections which probably would mean more to him in a financial way than a position as Assistant-Attorney-General. While the post in Washington would not necessarily bar him from the senatorial contest in 1926, he virtually would be prevented from opposing Spencer if he obtained the place through Spencer's influence.

When questioned about the Spencer interviews, Barrett said:
"I am reserving comment until I decide what I want to do." Barrett likes politics and official life, and it may be the question he is turning over in his own mind is whether he will retire from office and take his chances for the Senate, or whether he would prefer to keep on in office in a minor capacity.

While Barrett is mulling this over, Senator Spencer will have time to work out Ambassadorships or assistant secretaryships or something else for Gov. Hyde and Brewster.

KANSAS FARMER ACCUSED OF MURDER AFTER WIFE IS SLAIN
Prisoner Asserts He Awoke to Find Man Standing at Bed Wielding Ax.

By the Associated Press.
PALO, Kan., Dec. 3.—Murder
charges were filed here yesterday against Earl Work, 35 years old, farmer, in connection with the killing last Sunday night of his wife, Mrs. Gladys Work. Mrs.
Work was slain by a blow on the head as she slept in her home near here. Her infant son also was attacked and physicians hold little hope for the child's recovery.

Work has been held in jail since Monday. He told authorities that when he awoke Sunday night a man stood over the bed wielding an ax. He said he grappled with the intruder, who struck him once on the head and then fled. Shortly after the filing of charges against Work, a Coroner's jury returned an open verdict.

By the Associated Press.
MEXICO CITY, Dec. 3.—A disastrous but unsuccessful attack by bandits upon the mining town of El Chico to recover the body of their chief, which was being exhibited by the police as a warning to law violators, is reported in ad-

Emiliano Orbez was shot recent-

a sanguinary fight with troops. The bandits, bent upon recovering their leader's body for burial, gathered in the mountains under Juan Jose, second in command and descended upon the town only to meet with a second repulse. Jose was serious-

Secretary Calls Attention
$4,242,000,000 Reduction
in Public Debt Since
June, 1919.

Post-Dispatch Bureau
29-33 Wyatt Building
WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—Secretary Mellon has announced Treasury plans for the Dec. 15 financial statement which takes the form of a long term issue of 4 per cent Treasury bonds for $200,000,000. The announcement was made last night.

The bonds will be dated and mature Dec. 15, 1954, and be redeemable at the option of the government on and after Dec. 15, 1924, on four months' notice. This issue, with the income tax payments coming in Dec. 15, and miscellaneous receipts, is expected to meet the financial needs of the Treasury under the March financial period.

Certificates of indebtedness aggregating $407,000,000 fall due Dec. 15, to be followed by savings certificates of $25,000,000 Jan. 1, 1932, and circulation bonds of $118,000,000 in February.

Mellon Explains Issue.
Mellon explained the issue of the Treasury bonds as follows:

"Treasury certificates of indebtedness of Series TD and TD-15, maturing Dec. 15, 1924, will be accepted in payment, but considered part of the cash offering."

"The cash offering will be added to the necessary cash requirements to carry the Treasury until the March financial period permits the use of securities maturing in March and third Liberty Loan bonds to acquire the bonds and it is expected that holders of the present securities will to a large extent avail themselves of their rights."

"The application of March securities or third Liberty Loan bonds in payment for the Treasury bonds will in part relieve the somewhat heavy financing otherwise necessary in March, 1932, and on the maturity of the third Liberty Loan in September, 1932. Such changes mean no withdrawal from the investment market, but merely a change in character of the investment from long to long term."

Public Debt Reduction.
"The extent to which Government obligations in the hands of the public have been reduced is remarkable. In the five and one-half years since June 30, 1919, public debt has decreased from $14,445,506,140.05 to $21,241,832.25, a total reduction of $4,242,000,000."

"This reduction has been effected, first, out of the sinking fund payments and other similar sources, the total of which for the current fiscal year is estimated at $1,800,401, and which items are chargeable against the ordinary government expenditures before the budget will balance; second, from reduction in the working balance; and, third, from surplus."

"No further Government financing is expected until next March. Registered Third Liberty Loan Bonds May Be Exchanged. Holders of registered third Liberty loan 4 1/2 per cent bonds may exchange them at par for the issue of 4 per cent Treasury bonds of 1944-54. It was announced by the St. Louis Federal Reserve Bank. The same opportunity is offered to holders of Treasury certificates of indebtedness, Series TD and TD-15, which mature Dec. 15, 1924."

It was announced that prospective purchasers of bonds of the Treasury should make application to the bank or trust company or directly through the Federal Reserve Bank.

NEW LONG TERM
TREASURY LOAN
IS ANNOUNCED

Bond Issue of $200,000,000
Bearing 4 Per Cent Will Be Payable in 20 to 30 Years.

OTHER SECURITIES
SOON FALL DUE

Secretary Calls Attention to $4,242,000,000 Reduction
in Public Debt Since
June, 1919.

Post-Dispatch Bureau,
20-23 Wyatt Building,
WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—Secretary Mellon has announced Treasury bonds for the Dec. 15 financing,
which takes the form of a long-term issue of 4 per cent Treasury bonds for $200,000,000. The announcement was made last night.

The bonds will be dated and bear interest from Dec. 15, 1924, will mature Dec. 15, 1954, and be redeemable at the option of the Government on or after Dec. 15, 1944,
on four months' notice. This isallow, with the income tax payments
coming in Dec. 15, and miscellaneous receipts, is expected to meet the financial needs of the Treasury
under the March financing period.

Certificates of indebtedness aggregating $407,000,000 fall due Dec.
15, to be followed by savings certificates of $25,000,000 Jan. 1, and Treasury bonds of $118,000,000
February.

Mellon Explains Issue.

Mellon explained the issue "further as follows:

Treasury certificates of indebtedness of Series TD and TD-1924, bearing Dec. 15, 1924, will also be accepted in payment, but are not a part of the cash offer.

The cash offering will be reduced to the necessary cash requirements to cover the Treasury March financing period. The exchange feature of the securities
during in March and third Liberty Loan bonds to acquire the new March financing of the third series in September, 1928. Such exchanges mean no withdrawal of funds from the investment market, but merely a change in the character of the investment from short to long term.

Public Debt Reduction.

The extent to which Government obligations in the hands of the public have been reduced is remarkable. In the five and one-half years since June 30, 1919, the public debt has decreased from $4,454,506,160.05 to $2,124,135,535-
00.21, a total reduction of $4,242-370,370.84.

"This reduction has been effectuated first, out of the sinking fund,
and second, out of the Treasury surplus, the total of which for the fiscal year is estimated at $1,000,000,000.
The third, and which items are available against the ordinary Government expenditures before the budget will balance; second,
reduction in the working balance, and third, from surplus.
The further Government financing is expected until next March."

Reduced Third Liberty Loan
Bonds May Be Exchanged.

Holders of registered third Liberty loan 4 1/2 per cent bonds may exchange them at par for the new issue of 4 per cent Treasury bonds announced today.

The St. Louis Federal Reserve bank has some opportunity to offer to holders of Treasury certificates of indebtedness, Series
TD and TD-1924, which mature Dec.
15, 1924, to exchange them for the new issue of 4 per cent Treasury bonds.

It was announced that prospective holders of the new issue of bonds should make application to the securities through their bank or trust company or directly through the Federal Reserve bank.

JUDGE GRIMM CONDEMNS SENTIMENTAL JURIES FOR LENIENCY IN AUTO CASES

More Penitentiary Sentences
Urged by Magistrate, Who Also Criticizes Indifferent Prosecutors and Easy-Going Judges.

Sentimental jurors, and jurors
who are automobile owners, were blamed by Circuit Judge J. Hugo Grimm, in his talk at the annual Safety Council dinner at the Claridge
Hotel last evening, for failure to impose penitentiary terms on drivers who kill pedestrians.

Judge Grimm's address follows:

"The cause of many, if not a considerable majority of highway accidents, is carelessness and reckless driving by those operating automobiles. Men and women having little sense of responsibility will drive these powerful engines
through our crowded city streets at terrifically high rates of speed.
Not only that, but many will drive
them while in an intoxicated condition, and perfectly sober men who think they are in a hurry, and who are careless of the rights of others, will hurry across an intersecting street where the traffic
has been opened to those crossing the street.

Urges Severe Penalties.

"I realize that we have traffic ordinances which are impossible of enforcement, but certainly those who drive their automobiles at breakneck speed, those who drive
while intoxicated and those who try to snatch a right of way, all of whom are guilty of conduct entirely at variance with the spirit of the law, ought to be brought to the bar of justice, the cases fairly presented against them, and if guilty they should be severely punished. Regardless of the financial or social standing or political influence, Judge Grimm said.

"Is this done? I need not answer the question for you. Everybody in this room has seen a bonded warehouse in this city within the past few years. I mention this merely in passing, as it has only an indirect bearing upon the question of the present case. It is to be accomplished by zeal and energy
has been beautifully demonstrated by the work of our police during the past few days, when,
following a record of some 20
holdups in one night, there was a fine and determined effort which put an end to the enterprise of the highwayman, at least temporarily.

"Should Compliment Police."

"I believe we ought to compliment the police for this good work,
as we should give credit to all officials who do good and effective work, for praise is the only reward that can come to a public official."

Returning to the question of the men who render our streets unsafe by reckless driving, it seems to me that the way to reduce that form of law violation is to enforce the law as vigorously and unrelent-ingly that the reckless and careless driver will realize that his conduct will cost him not merely a small fine, but will probably land
him in a small but strong cell
in the eastern end of Jefferson City, or in the Workhouse. And,
my friends, what a difference it would make in our efforts to enforce the criminal laws if, in fact as well as in theory, all men were equal before the law.

"There are many reformers today who are so simple-minded as to believe that the certain remedy
for every social evil is an appeal to the Legislature. Let an troublesome situation arise, and immediately this group of social philosophers will propose having a new law passed to remedy the trouble.
The proposal to call for Legislature seems to satisfy the critics, a bill is presented to the next Legislature and if not so utterly absurd
that the law-making body fear that its passage would hold them up to public ridicule, it is enacted into law, placed upon the statute book and thereafter lost to view. The statute books contain pages upon pages of such so-called laws.

"But the mere fact that the Legislature passed a bill and the Governor signs it, does not make it a law. It must run the gantlet
of the courts, which may decide it to be unconstitutional, or find that it is meaningless, or they may decide that it means something entirely different than its authors ever intended; and even though the law be sustained by the courts, it may become a dead letter unless it is reinforced by public sentiment."

Judge Grimm's reference to a whisky theft apparently meant the Jack Daniel warehouse case, in which more than 800 barrels were "milked" of their contents without being removed from the warehouse.
In that case, 17 persons were indicted, and the case is to be in the Federal Court next month.

Oliver T. Remmer was elected president of the Safety Council,
and he and several others spoke.

Richard of Pennsylvania, who retires next June. A message urging the appointment of Gen. Raup to the position has been sent to President Coolidge.

PREDICTS NEED OF MORE RIVER DOCKS
AT ST. LOUIS SOON

Gen. T. Q. Ashburn Inspects Terminals and Tells of Plans to Increase Water Traffic.

MORE FREQUENT
SAILINGS FAVORED

Head of Inland Waterways Corporation Also Urge
Through Water - Rail
Rates to South.

Gen. T. Q. Ashburn, executive
head of the Inland Waterways Corporation, and civilian member of the corporation's Advisory Board, who inspected river terminals, held a public traffic hearing and were guests at a Chamber of Commerce luncheon yesterday,
departed last night for an inspection trip of the lower Mississippi and Warrior Rivers.

In departing, Gen. Ashburn and the three board members with him carried with them certain definite impressions of their day's visit in St. Louis, which were enumerated by Gen. Ashburn.
First, there must be more frequent sailings of the Mississippi-Warrior fleet, the corporation's chief property; second, St. Louis shippers must have consideration in their request for a through water-rail
rate from Vicksburg and Gulf
points to points in Texas, to meet
New York competition; and third,
St. Louis terminals, while adequate at present, will be insufficient to meet the river traffic needs of a very near future.

Dock and Terminals Inspected.

These points were brought to light in an inspection of the municipal dock at the East St. Louis terminal in the afternoon. The hearing held at the Chamber of Commerce yesterday afternoon and at the luncheon tendered the visitors at the city club. The luncheon, attended by the directors of the Chamber of Commerce, was presided over by W. K. Kavanaugh, long a deep waterways advocate and chairman of the Chamber's River Transportation Committee,
and was addressed by Gen. Ashburn and the board members present—Halleck W. Seaman of Clinton, Ia., and Chicago; R. A.
Brown, Birmingham; and James E. Smith, St. Louis.

"The railroads have gone their limit in the storage and car deliveries of grain," declared Seaman, speaking for the grain states
of the Upper Mississippi Valley.
"As a result we are penalized, unless we can get our grain to the sea. The river is our only hope.
Consider our great competitor, the grain production of the Argentine.
That country grain can be loaded up a river as far as St. Louis from the jetty and delivered to Liverpool for half the cost. Hence, the city can be produced half as cheaply
as we can."

Importance of the Service.

"Unless you business men can find an outlet to the sea, you will find your factories circumscribed
to an area of a few hundred miles.
Only recently six large Chicago factories moved to Bridgeport to meet seaboard competition. The Mississippi River is the artery to concentrate on, not the St. Lawrence River. The St. Lawrence project completed would mean only a half interest to the United States
from one-eighth to one-twelfth its distance, and then only for several miles, and finally our products would have to go out to sea
under the guns of Halifax."

Three policies underlie the Inland Waterways Corporation, Gen.
Ashburn asserted. These are, that there is no such thing as a free
water-rail transportation; it is cheaper; and, lastly, that since everybody is taxed for these facilities,
everybody must share in the benefits.

"The Inland Waterways Corporation took over the former Inland and Coastwise Water Service
of the War Department," Gen.
Ashburn related. "It was recognized that there must be some Government planning, and it was also recognized that the restrictions of Government ownership must be lifted. Hence, Congress gave us $5,000,000 to complete our fleets and gave us free rein.

Aim of the Corporation.

"The railroads say it will cost a billion dollars a year to run the next 10 years to meet transportation requirements. The people must pay that 10 billions. We are trying to prove that we can give cheaper transportation by a water-rail system, believing that if we give the railroad a fair deal, we will get a fair deal in return, and the people will reap the benefits.

"In 1921 our equipment was appraised at $2,100,000; recently it was appraised at nearly $13,000,000.
Our experiment is to demonstrate the commercial practicability of river transportation, expecting to attract private capital,
and to show that the water-rail transportation business, but when we do turn over the property, we expect it will not be classed as a private or contract carrier, but as a common carrier. And when we have demonstrated what can be done on the Mississippi we hope to move to other navigable streams and repeat the experiment. In the meantime, be patient. Let the engineers give us the channel. Then we will have river transportation."

Completion of all the river and harbor projects of the country by city engineers, on a scale comparable to the construction of the Panama Canal, was discussed by Smith, former president of the Mississippi Valley Association and author of a bill introduced by Congressman Porter of Pennsylvania,
appropriating $204,000,000 for that purpose.

Definite Policy Urged.

"Low Ceilings" Compel Planes to Fly So Low
That They Do Little More

Big Rollers Coming in From Pacific Ocean.

Wade and Ogden had trouble in getting the Boston off the water
at Seattle and had to make this entire flight from Puget Sound to Prince Rupert alone. They came through all the fog, rain and snow
an hour and a half after the others
and when they were on their way
over Johnstone Strait, flying
just off the water, they, too, narrowly avoided running into ships.
Twice they saw masts sticking up right in front of them and "kicked rudder" just in time to avert and miss them by a few feet.

At another point Wade and Ogden narrowly escaped getting hopelessly lost. They were above an island in a fog so dense that they could make out nothing either ahead or to the left or to the right.
All they could see was the black edge of the forest below. So Wade kept flying around it around and around until at last the fog thinned out just enough to enable him to get back on his course again.

"Just before we passed over Johnstone Strait into Queen Charlotte Sound," Arnold writes in his diary, "the ceiling lifted four or five hundred feet and although we had run into a rainstorm we could see
the distant settlement at Alert Bay,
on the east coast of Vancouver Island."

"Plunging on through drenching rain, we rounded Cape Caution and got the biggest thrill of the trip.
Above us was a dense fog. We were now flying with a ceiling of less than 200 feet. It was raining to beat the band and a stiff gale was blowing in from the open sea. Straight across miles of the Pacific ocean great swells were rolling toward the coast. Fully 40 or 50 feet high, those cold gray
waves looked to me as if I leaned over the edge of the cockpit. Hurling themselves against the rocky cliffs of Cape Caution, those great rollers broke up into spume and sprindrift that shot high into the air."

Through Rain, Sleet and Hail.

"It was fun to watch those waves
come pounding and smashing against the cliffs and against their had been gathering force in their journey all the way across the Pacific from Siberia. But it wasn't so much fun imagining
what would happen if I had been made for a landing. I flopped down
in the middle of that angry sea.
That was the most vicious stretch
of water that any of us, except Edith had ever seen, and even our flying Viking got a thrill out of it
that hasn't worn off after two days
here at Prince Rupert."

"Rounding Calvert Island, we swung to the right and again
they had been gathering force in
their journey all the way across
the Pacific from Siberia. But it
wasn't so much fun imagining
what would happen if I had been made for a landing. I flopped down

of water that any of us, except Edith had ever seen, and even our

that hasn't worn off after two days

"Our chief problem now was to get the Seattle repaired after its
driving rain, sometimes through
sheets of sleet and twice we had to fly through squalls of hail. The Donald Douglas, it never would have withstood that 30-foot plunge into the water without more than a few struts and vertical brace wires snapping. However, after a thorough inspection, our confidence in the plane increased 50 per cent. We discovered to our joy that the Major's ship had not been along the same business-like procedure as was effected in constructing the Panama Canal. And it has been figured that such a definite policy would save the people about 50 millions, or 25 per cent, of the cost of the project."

MAC DONALD RECHOSEN TO LEAD LABOR IN PARLIAMENT

LONDON, Dec. 3.—Ramsay
MacDonald, former Labor Premier, was re-elected chairman and party today.

tion of the eighteenth amendment
in America. When our hosts rose to drink a toast to our success we innocently made the mistake of standing with them and drinking to ourselves. During the banquet we were presented with small Union Jacks as souvenirs, and although we had never contemplated carrying the flags of any other countries along with us, we were tripped
up with such charming hospitality
in Prince Rupert that some of us kept these Union Jacks in our planes as a tribute to the country whose subjects had welcomed us
so warmly.

"The city of Prince Rupert is surrounded by snow-capped mountains, and all the time we were there it was bitter cold and the air
was either filled with snow or sleet.
The winds that swept down off the mountains almost shivered us.

"Prince Rupert, and, in fact, all of the towns along this north Pacific coast are famous for their misty, rainy climate. The rainfall here is a close second to the rainfall in some parts of Burma and India, where Erik, our flying geography, says that it seldom stops pouring.

"An enthusiastic member of the local boosters' club told us a yarn about Prince Rupert's climate. He said that many years ago a Methodist preacher arrived in this opening sermon he harried his congregation back to the 'days of Noah, the first great navigator. He told them it had rained for 40 days
and 40 nights, at the end of which the whole world was inundated with water.

"The Fisherman's Comeback.

"At that point a tall lanternjawed fisherman stood up in the back of the church and introduced the preacher: 'Say, you can't put anything like that over on us.
Why, up here in Prince Rupert it has rained for 40 years and 40 nights, and it hasn't even affected
the tide.'

"We are all inclined to agree with the fisherman, for it has rained and snowed all the 7th, 8th
and 9th, which we have been working on Maj. Martin's plane. We have been wet through most of the time, and I can tell you we have
as much of a time holding our tools in our hands. Everything has been so slushy and slippery
that we have been constantly dropping wrenches and hammers overboard. Leigh took off the front cowling (metal hood covering the nose of the plane) and put it down for a moment on the wing of the plane. When he reached for the cowlings again it had slipped into the sea.

"Now the cowlings of an airplane
are one thing that you never expect to lose. We had spare parts for almost every emergency, but no
new airplane noses.

"Although we fished for that blasted cowlings for hours, we couldn't locate it. So Leigh got the coopersmith from the shipyard
to hammer a makeshift one out of copper. From then on for months
the Boston flew with a copper-colored proboscis instead of an aluminum one like the Seattle, Chicago and New Orleans.

"Leigh, in addition to being superstitious about such things as losing your plane's nose, is somewhat fastidious, and the idea of the Boston flying around the world
with a somewhat bulbous copper-colored nose perturbed him considerably.

CHANGING CARBURETORS FOR COLD.

Rupert in a driving snowstorm.
We came down into a sheltered refuge from the winds, a place entirely surrounded by high wooded hills called Seal Cove.

"Blinded by a snowstorm and
with his engine giving trouble, Maj.
Martin and Sergeant Harvey nearly ended their flight right then and there. The Seattle slipped and fell 30 feet. Imagine four tons of airplane crashing that distance into the water! The shock broke the outer struts on the left hand side and snapped the vertical wires
and it was indeed remarkable that no more damage than that was done.

"With an exclamation of disgust, Harvey took the rabbit's foot which had been presented to him
in Sacramento and hurled it into the sea. He said that instead of it turning out to be a good luck
charm he was sure it was a jinx.

Welcomed by Canadians.

"You have arrived on the worst day in 10 years," said the representatives of the Canadian Government who were standing in the snow awaiting us when we came ashore from our planes at Seal Cove. However, we sincerely appreciated their not describing it as the worst day in 40 years! Perhaps their British conservatism accounts
for this surprising restraint, says Lieut. Arnold in his diary in telling of the long jump from Seattle to Prince Rupert.

"This flight of 650 miles through 155 miles of fog and 275 miles of rain, sleet, snow and hail, against strong head winds and stiff cross
gales, had taken us eight hours and ten minutes, and here for the first time we saw what splendid preliminary arrangements had been made for us by Capt. Bissell, who had been sent in advance by the chief of the air service.

"As soon as we had got ashore
the Canadian representatives, with tea and other beverages for which Canada is famous, and our first toast was to Bissell, whose advance arrangements were perfect, not only with regard to facilities for mooring the planes, but regarding everything else that might come up in Prince Rupert.

"Our chief problem now was to
get the Seattle repaired after its
driving rain, sometimes through
sheets of sleet and twice we had
to fly through squalls of hail. The

SAYS EXPRESS TRAFFIC
FORECASTS PROSPERITY

President Cowie of American Railway Express Co. Delivers Address Here.

All indications furnished by the trend of express traffic in the country since the election point to an immediate period of marked prosperity, in the opinion of Robert E. M. Cowie, president of the American Railway Express Co., who spoke at the annual dinner of the Traffic Club of St. Louis at Hotel Chase last night.

Cowie said the volume of traffic handled by express is an accurate
barometer of business conditions
throughout the nation. "Trade is dull or 'spotty,'" the situation is instantly revealed through express shipments, because transportation of goods and business governments, he declared, that the forecast of an unusual increase in business activity is based.

In support of his contention,
Cowie cited the growth of the express company to an organization
now handling $300,000,000 of business in a year, maintaining 39,300

offices, employing 115,000 persons,
with an annual payroll of $125,- 000,000 and operating over 260,000 miles of railroad. The number of shipments now being handled shows no decline from last year's record, he declared, in spite of increased competition resulting from an improved freight service, parcel post and a tremendous increase in the use of overland trucks.

BRAZIL SUSPENDS VISAS FOR JAPANESE EMIGRANTS

By the Associated Press.
TOKIO, Dec. 3.—The Brazilian
Consul has notified the Japanese Government that he has been instructed to suspend the grant of visas for intending emigrants to Brazil. The Foreign Office, taken by surprise, has instructed the Japanese Minister to Brazil to make a report on the matter immediately.

Akatsumi, chief of the emigration section of the Foreign Office,
said: "If this notice heralds an exclusion policy against Japanese,
the situation presents itself as a decidedly serious aspect to the Japanese nation."

Music

Fedor Chaliapin Is Once More the Elucutionist and Actor Rather Than Singer.

By RICHARD L. STOKES.

A CONCERT by Fedor Chaliapin is not so much a musical event as a series of recitations, using vocal and piano tone as an embellishment of the principal fabric of the program. He does not sing arias and ballads, but declaims poems, with incidental music. Now that his voice is no longer the superb organ of 15 or 20 years ago, he has become an elucutionist in song; a supreme actor, and particularly a comedian, who happens to use music as one of the ingredients of expression.

These opinions were confirmed by the famous Russian basso's second St. Louis appearance, last night at the Odeon, before an audience rather smaller than the one which had been expected, but one which was gradually won to enthusiastic approval of his singular and eloquent art. His success was the more remarkable because the Russian singer, who has been in the St. Louis tongue, were from unfamiliar Russian operas.

His keen literary feeling. Few luminaries of the theater possess Chaliapin's extraordinary literary sensitiveness. He appears now a figure of some six feet of brown hair, exposed and specialized nerve, mordantly impressionable to words in their midst, in the pursuit of ultimate elucution, he treats music with scant respect.

Two of his selections, for instance, were Schumann's "The Two Grenadiers"—sung for some reason in Russian instead of German—and Massenet's "Elegie." One speculated on what the composers would have thought of the elucutionist taken with their music. Bars between measures were broken down, notes were taken a beat ahead or behind their written position, rules of breathing were discarded, and phrases were scattered into fragments, and the voice burst frequently from musical into spoken language. Yet no one could deny that the effect was intensely moving.

Announces Songs by Number. As at all his concerts, Chaliapin has no set program, but announces his songs one by one, and the elucutionist calling out hymns. The numbers refer to a repertoire of more than 100 airs, the text of which, in English, is distributed in booklets. He began with Schumann's "The Two Grenadiers," the earliest and one of the greatest of Russian operas; and proceeded to the chivalrous dialogue between Khan Koolik and Igor in Borodin's "Prince Igor." Applause arose as he announced No. 67, which was "The Two Grenadiers," and which was followed at once by another of the Napoleonic legend, "The Midnight Review." Dargomizhsky's merry and alcoholic tale of "The Government Clerk," repeated from last year's program, and "The Laughed," given with sardonic mockery, completed the singer's first group.

A French song, "The Horn," by Flegier, opened his second group; and then came another of the Russian repertoire, Moussorgsky's setting of Mephisto's "Song of the Flea," from Goethe's "Faust." The interpretation of the latter was new and less effective, however, than the "Elegie." The singer made rare play with his half-voice. The familiar "Volga Boat Song," rendered with immense power, was the most popular selection of the evening.

A Mozart catalogue of his master's love, from Mozart's "Don Giovanni," was sung in guttural Italian, but with a demure, dry and scolding tone of inquiry, at once striking and bracing, which caught the very accent of the libertine's banter. Still another repetition was of the "Moscow Dances," after which, with justifiable applause for his piano playing, Chaliapin provided his own accompaniment for a Tartar cradle-song.

During all of these songs, the singer reinforced his elucution with gestures, facial contortions, clenching of teeth, rolling of small blue eyes, and muttered directions to his pianist. No artist was ever more restless; he resembled an excitable horse prancing at the barrier and straining to go. One had a feeling that the musical values of the evening were supplied by the accompanist, Max Balinovich. Accompanying a singer so actively free in his method as Chaliapin must be one of the hardest tasks in the world, and he was accomplished brilliantly. Balinovich also played a group of songs like a concert pianist. Abravanel, violinist, contributed several pieces, and three movements from Lalo's "Symphonie Espagnole."

SAYS SEX TRAINING SHOULD BEGIN AT BIRTH

Dr. Exner Tells Mothers They Should Interpret Facts for Their Children.

Boys and girls of tender years should be permitted to play together in the nude under proper supervision of their parents, Dr. M. J. Exner, director of the Department of Educational Measures of the American Social Hygiene Association, told 200 mothers this morning in the second of his talks for parents, given as a part of the Institute of Social Hygiene at the Social Service Building, 2221 Locust street. Playing "in the lo-cu-ther," as artists call it, is recommended as a preventive of morbid curiosity.

"The natural interest of a child in the human body, both as to his own and the opposite sex, is quite normal," Dr. Exner said. "The assembled mothers. 'The best way to satisfy this interest and keep it normal is to allow children of both sexes from early years to romp and play in the nude under the supervision of their parents. A failure to satisfy this curiosity leads to an expression of this interest in various morbid ways."

"Sex training," he continued, "must begin with the birth of the individual and must continue progressively to full maturity. Information alone is not enough. Interpretation of sex facts in terms of manhood, womanhood, social responsibilities and other high values is even more important. The inspiration of high ideals must be supported by the most powerful correct example. Teaching alone will not prevail if it is contrary to example in matters of sex in the home."

"The home is first of all responsible for teaching in matters of sex," he said. "The task of parents is comparatively simple; being mainly one of developing and maintaining clean, wholesome, respectful attitudes toward sex and reproduction in family life. No other agency can make up for home neglect."

"The parent must succeed in winning and keeping the child's confidence, so that it will naturally bring all questions on these matters to the parent for enlightenment. Then the most powerful step has been accomplished."

Children should be taught a scientific vocabulary that they may with accuracy refer to matters of sex, he said, and the child must in every way be motivated toward self-direction and self-control. In the early years, the speaker said, the speaker must be based upon a motive of self rather than of social interest.

By following such a system in the tender years of childhood, Dr. Exner asserted, the child's attitude toward sex would minimize the dangers of adolescent years. A special session of the institute will be held at 2 p. m. Saturday at the Social Service Auditorium, 2221 Locust street, for the purpose of discussing the speaker's views on sex education.

The speaker will answer written questions which his students have been asked to submit to him. Another special session will be held at Soldan High School on Friday evening, and will be a meeting for fathers only.

RUDOLPH GANZ HONORED BY ROYAL ACADEMY OF FLORENCE
Distinction Awarded to Few Foreign Musicians Given to Symphony Orchestra Leader.

On the eve of his departure for Detroit, where he appears as soloist with the Symphony Orchestra of that city tomorrow and Friday, Rudolph Ganz was notified of his election as an honorary member of the Royal Academy of Florence, Italy. This distinction, it is said, is awarded to few foreign musicians, and only to those who have been active in musical creation.

After a concert in Paris last spring, part of the proceeds of which were for the benefit of the French Red Cross, Ganz received a silver medal with the dedication: "To Rudolph Ganz, from the Old Pupils of the Conservatory of Paris." In Detroit, under the baton of Ossip Gabrilowitch, the St. Louis director will play Beethoven's C Major concerto and the Franck "Variations."

Ganz is survived by his wife and six children—Mrs. George W. Knorr, Louisville, Ky.; Arthur F. Smith, Omaha; William C. Smith, Sioux Falls, Neb.; Dr. F. J. Smith, Okoboji, Neb.; Mrs. Metz and Mrs. Weiss.

CHRISTMAS SEAL CAMPAIGN OF TUBERCULOSIS SOCIETY ON

Plans for the sale of Christmas seals, which is now in full swing. The little seals which will be sold for all open air school work and other public health activities of the Tuberculosis Society of St. Louis made their initial appearance yesterday. At that time 100,000 seals were sold, according to Homer Hall, president of the society. The Associated Retailers are co-operating by placing seals on sale in all department stores. They will also be sold in all the Postoffice, and booths will be established in Union Station to make them available there. The Central Trades and Labor Union has entered the campaign, and in addition has put a seal on every union card issued for December. Plans for School day, Movie day, Theater day and other special events are nearly completed.

One of the distinguishing features of the sale of Christmas seals, according to Hall, is that it is conducted almost entirely by mail. In addition to simultaneously placing the seals in the hands of 100,000 people, the mail order method also enables the record of service of the seals to be placed before these people in readable form, explaining what Christmas seals really do for the people of St. Louis and St. Louis County.

Registration of applicants for the school will continue today and tomorrow at the offices of the theater association, 1850 Arcade Building. Examination of candidates so far enrolled began last Monday night at Unity Hall, Grand and Page boulevards, where sessions of the school will be held. The officials in charge of the school have requested that all singers who have already registered for the school, but who have not been examined, report tonight at 7 o'clock.

Intensive training in all branches of stage work is the plan adopted for the chorus school this year. Classes will be organized for study in music sight reading, ensemble singing, dancing and stage deportment. The school will be directed by Frank Palmer and Charles Previn, stage and music directors, respectively, for the theater association.

THREE-SIDED CONTEST OVER $25,000 ESTATE

Jury Hearing Suit Involving Money Left to Charity by Mrs. Arrena Pierron.

A jury in Circuit Judge Hall's court is hearing testimony in the three-sided contest of the will of the late Mrs. Arrena R. Pierron, 76 years old, who left an estate of about $25,000, although she lived for some time before her death a number of months ago in one room over a garage at 3203 North Newstead avenue.

The will being contested, which was admitted to probate, left the estate to charities, which were to be picked at the discretion of the executor, William A. Kinnerk, a lawyer, with offices in the Merchants-Laclede Building. Kinnerk is defendant in the suit.

This will, drawn in August, 1923, superseded one drawn the day before, in which the estate was bequeathed to Frank X. Wentura of 226 Kingshighway Park, plaintiff in the contest. Mrs. Pierron met Wentura 15 years ago in a boarding house where both resided, and a friendship sprang up. Mrs. Pierron, who was a widow, stated Wentura had helped her, and during part of her last illness she stayed at his home and was cared for by his wife, attorneys told the jury.

The third side in the contest comprises collateral heirs of Mrs. Pierron, represented in court by Attorney N. Murry Edwards. Executor Kinnerk seeks to uphold the second will, in favor of charity. Wentura seeks to uphold the first will, in his favor, and invalidate the second one, alleging it was drawn under undue influence by Kinnerk and Mrs. Flora Flannery, a friend of Mrs. Pierron, and that the latter was not of sound mind when it was drawn. The collateral heirs, including Harrison Hart, an aged brother of Mrs. Pierron, who is an inmate of the Danville (Ill.) Soldiers' Home, want both wills knocked out so the estate will revert to them.

When prospective jurors in the case were being examined yesterday, one of them, Michael J. Gadall of 140 Terry avenue, a show-worker, stated he was "opposed to courts." Answering Judge Hall's demand for an explanation, he said members of his family were hurt in an automobile accident which was referred to the grand jury, but no prosecution resulted. Gadall expressed belief that political influence prevented his getting a "square deal."

"You're not blaming the courts for that, are you?" asked the judge. "Who are you going to blame?" Gadall countered.

The judge explained that not the courts, but the Circuit Attorney's office, handles grand jury matters, and added, "I don't think there is a Judge on the Circuit bench who gives three damn odds political influence." He turned to attorneys and ordered Gadall stricken from the panel.

Mrs. Flannery testified that, in her opinion, Mrs. Pierron was of sound mind when she made the wills, and that she heard Kinnerk suggest to Mrs. Pierron that she leave something to relatives, but that Mrs. Pierron refused, remarking that she had had trouble with relatives.

In 1917, Mrs. Flannery testified, Mrs. Pierron had a discolored eye which she attributed to an attack by a brother who wanted money. An effort was made to show that Mrs. Pierron had no religion, and in this connection Mrs. Flannery testified that Mrs. Pierron submitted to baptism and asked the prayers of friends a few days before she died.

Kinnerk denied any attempt to influence Mrs. Pierron. He testified he was called by Mrs. Flannery and acted only in the capacity of attorney in drawing the will.

FENN TO LEAVE HERE IN QUEST FOR DIVORCE

Lawyer, Twice Denied Decree, Says Wife's "Machinations"
Have Banished Him.

Bertrand J. Fenn, an attorney with offices in the Central National Bank Building, announced today that since he had failed in two attempts to get a divorce from Mrs. Margaret Fenn, 6137 Waterman avenue, he would leave St. Louis forever in search of happiness and a divorce.

"There are seven states in the Union," Fenn declared, "in which one can obtain a divorce without it being absolutely necessary to notify the defendant. Most of them are west of the Mississippi River and in one of these states I intend to spend the rest of my days. I have been banished from the State and city I love through the machinations of Mrs. Fenn. In one of these states, which I am keeping strictly secret from my wife, I will obtain a divorce from that woman and try to find happiness."

Mrs. Fenn does not agree. She insists there is not a state in the Union far enough away to prevent her from appearing in the courtroom ready to contest when Fenn for the third time makes his plea for freedom.

"I have enough money," Mrs. Fenn declared, "to follow him any place he may choose to lead. Twice I have stopped him from obtaining a divorce at Clayton and I believe I can do the same in his 'Golden West.' There is only one place I will not follow him. That is Mexico. The climate is too bad."

Fenn has an interest in a plantation near Vera Cruz, Mexico. However, he agrees the climate is too unfavorable to consider obtaining a divorce there.

"I lost 20 pounds when I was down there," he declared.

Fenn admitted to reporters he was engaged to Mrs. Sudie Sparks, 6071 Cabanne place, while he was still married to his wife. Mrs. Sparks declared she thought Mrs. Fenn was dead, because Fenn constantly referred to her as "the angel."

FINDS 'ENCOURAGEMENT' SATISFACTION
PRESENT

Continuance of Government
Way to Provide

Pro

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—

Following is the text of the President's message to Congress:

The present state of the Union

upon which it is customary for the President to report to the Congress under the provisions of the Constitution, is such that it may be regarded with encouragement and satisfaction by every American. Our country

unlike any other in its ability to discharge its obligations promptly

and to provide for all its inhabitants an increase in material resources, in intellectual vigor

and in moral power. The nation

holds a position unsurpassed

in all former human experience.

This does not mean that we do not have any problems. It is elementary that the increasing breadth of our experience necessarily increases the problems of our national life. But it does mean that if we will but apply ourselves industriously and honestly, we have ample power

with which to meet our problems

and provide for their speedy solution. I do not profess that we can secure an era of perfection

in human existence, but we can provide an era of peace and prosperity, attended with freedom and justice and made more and more satisfying by the min-istrations of the charities and humanities of life.

Our domestic problems are for the most part economic. We have our enormous debt to pay and we are paying it. We have the high cost of Government and its diminution, and we are diminishing it. We have a heavy burden of taxation to reduce, and we are reducing it. But while remarkable progress has been made in these directions, the work is yet far from accomplished. We still owe over $21

$20,000,000, the cost of the National Government is still about

$2,500,000,000, and the national

taxes still amount to about $2

for each one of our inhabitants.

There yet exists this enormous field for the application of economy.

Rigid Economy Chief

Remedy in Public Ills.

In my opinion the Government can do more to remedy the economic ills of the people by a system of rigid economy in public expenditure than can be accomplished through any other action.

The costs of our national and local governments combined stand

at a sum close to $100,000,000

each inhabitant of the land. A little less than one-third of this represented by national expenditure, and a little more than the thirds by local expenditure. It is an ominous fact that only one national Government is reducing its debt. Others are increasing theirs at about $1,000,000,000

each year. The depression that overtook business, the disaster

experienced in agriculture, the lack of employment and the shrinkage in all valuable

which our country experiences

a most acute form in 1929, resulted in no small measure from the prohibitive taxes which we

then levied on all productive activity. The establishment of a system of drastic economy

public expenditure, which has enabled us to pay off about $5

of the national debt since 1913, and almost cut in two

the national tax burden since 1913

has been one of the main causes

in re-establishing a prosperous future, and a little more than the benefits almost every one of our inhabitants. Economy reaches everywhere. It carries its blessing to everybody.

The fallacy of the claim that the costs of government are borne by the rich and those who make a direct contribution to the National Treasury can be too often exposed. No man has been devised, I do not think any system could be devised, under which any one

living in this country could escape being affected by the

of our Government. It has direct effect both upon the

and the purchasing power wages. It is felt in the price of those prime necessities of life, food, clothing, fuel

and shelter. It would appear elementary that the more

the Government expends the more it requires every producer

to contribute out of his product to the Public Treasury, and the more he will have for his support. The consumptive cost of public administration can be only one way—by the

of the people. The higher

the more the Government

work for the Government

the less they are, the more people can work for them-

TEXT OF THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

FINDS 'ENCOURAGEMENT AND SATISFACTION' IN NATION'S PRESENT ECONOMIC STATE

Continuance of Governmental Economy Best Way to Provide "Era of Peace and Prosperity."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 3.—The President's message to Congress: The present state of the Union, upon which it is customary for the President to report to the Congress under the provisions of the Constitution, is such that it may be regarded with encouragement and satisfaction by every American. Our country is almost wholly in its ability to discharge fully and promptly all its obligations at home and abroad, and provide for all its inhabitants an increase in material resources, in intellectual vigor and in moral power. The nation holds a position unsurpassed in all former human experience. This does not mean that we do not have any problems. It is elementary that the increasing breadth of our experience necessarily increases the problems of our national life. But it does mean that if we will but apply ourselves industriously and honestly, we have ample powers with which to meet our problems and provide for their speedy solution. I do not profess that we can secure an era of perfection in human existence, but we can provide an era of peace and prosperity, attended with freedom and justice and made more and more satisfying by the ministrations of the charities and humanities of life. Our domestic problems are for the most part economic. We have our enormous debt to pay, and we are paying it. We have the high cost of Government to the individual, and we are diminishing it. We have a heavy burden of taxation to reduce, and we are reducing it. But while remarkable progress has been made in these directions, the work is yet far from accomplished. We still owe over $21,000,000,000, the cost of the National Government is still about $150,000,000, and the national taxes still amount to about $27 for each one of our inhabitants. There yet exists this enormous field for the application of economy.

Rigid Economy Chief Remedy in Public Ills.

In my opinion the Government can do more to remedy the economic ills of the people by a system of rigid economy in public expenditure than can be accomplished through any other action. The costs of our national and local governments combined now stand at a sum close to $100 for each inhabitant of the land. A little less than one-third of this is represented by national expenditures, and a little more than one-third by local expenditures. It is a grim fact that only the National Government is reducing its debt. Others are increasing theirs at about $1,000,000,000 each year. The depression that overtook business, the disaster wrought in agriculture, the lack of employment and the terrific shrinkage in all values which our country has experienced in a most acute form in 1920, resulted in no small measure from the prohibitive taxes which were then levied on all productive effort. The establishment of a system of drastic economy in public expenditure, which has enabled us to pay off about one-third of the national debt since 1921, and almost cut in two the national tax burden since 1921, has been one of the main causes in re-establishing a prosperity which has come to include within its benefits almost every one of our inhabitants. Economy reaches everywhere. It carries a blessing to everybody.

The fallacy of the claim that the costs of government are borne by the rich and those who make a direct contribution to the National Treasury cannot be too often exposed. No system has been devised, I do not think, under which any one class in this country could escape being affected by the cost of our Government. It has a direct effect both upon the rate and the purchasing power of wages. It is felt in the price of these prime necessities of existence, food, clothing, fuel and shelter. It would appear to be elementary that the more the Government expends the more it must require every producer to contribute out of his production to the Public Treasury, and the more he will have for his own needs. The contention that the administration can be met in any one way—by the work of the people. The higher they are, the more the people work for the Government. The lower they are, the more the people can work for themselves.

For Self-Sustaining Policy of Reclamation.

Our country has a well-defined policy of reclamation established under statutory authority. This policy should be continued and made a self-sustaining activity administered in a manner that will meet local requirements and bring our arid lands into a profitable state of cultivation as fast as there is a market for their products. Legislation is pending based on the report of the Fact-Finding Commission for the proper relief of these needing extension of time in which to meet their payments on irrigated land, and for additional amendments and reforms of our reclamation laws, which are all exceedingly important and should be enacted at once.

Agriculture "Must Take Chances With Business."

No more important development has taken place in the last year than the beginning of a restoration of agriculture to a prosperous condition. We must permit no division of classes in this country, with one occupation striving to secure advantage over another. Each must proceed under open opportunities and with a fair prospect of economic equality. The Government can not successfully insure prosperity or fix prices by legislative fiat. Every business has its risk and its times of depression. It is well known that in the long run there will be a more extensive range of prices under the natural working out of economic laws than when the Government undertakes the artificial support of markets and industries. Still we can so order our affairs, so protect our own people from foreign competition, so arrange our national finances, so administer our monetary system, so provide for the extension of credits, so improve methods of distribution, as to provide a better working machinery for the transaction of the business of the nation with the least possible friction and loss. The Government has been constantly increasing its efforts in these directions for the relief and permanent establishment of agriculture on a sound and equal basis with other business.

It is estimated that the value of the crops for this harvest year may reach $13,000,000,000, which is an increase of over $3,000,000,000 in three years. It compares with $7,100,000,000 in 1913, and if we make deduction from the figures of 1924 for the comparatively decreased value of the dollar, the yield this year still exceeds 1913 in purchasing power by over $1,000,000,000, and in this interval there has been an increase in the number of farmers. Mostly by his own effort the farmer has decreased the cost of production. A marked increase in the price of products and some decrease in the price of his supplies have brought him about to a parity with the rest of the nation. The crop area of this season is estimated at 370,000,000 acres, which is a decline of 3,000,000 acres from last year, and 6,000,000 acres from 1913. This has been a normal and natural application of economic laws, which has placed agriculture on a foundation which is undeniably sound and beginning to be satisfactory.

A decrease in the world supply of wheat has resulted in a very large increase in the price of that commodity. The position of all agricultural products indicates a better-balanced supply, but can not yet conclude that agriculture recovered from the effects of the war period or that it is permanently on a prosperous basis. The cattle industry has not yet recovered and in some sections has been suffering from dry weather. Every effort must be made, both by Government activity and by private agencies, to restore and maintain agriculture to a complete normal relationship with other industries.

It is one of the chief sustenance elements of life. It is estimated that soil exhaustion each year is represented by about 9,000,000 tons and replenishment by 5,400,000 tons. The deficit of 3,500,000 tons is reported to represent the impairment of 118,000,000 acres of farm lands each year. To meet these necessities the Government has been developing a water power project at Muscle Shoals to be equipped to produce nitrogen for explosives and fertilizer. It is my opinion that the support of agriculture is the chief problem to consider in connection with this property. It could by no means supply the present needs for nitrogen, but it would help and its development would encourage bringing other water powers into like use.

Several others have been made for the purchase of this property. Probably not more than a few represents final terms. Much costly experimentation is necessary to produce commercial nitrogen. For that reason it is a difficult matter to put further enterprise than to Government operation. I should favor a sale of this property, or long-time lease, under rigid guarantees of commercial nitrogen production at reasonable prices for agricultural use. There would be a surplus of power for many years over any possibility of its application to a developing manufacture of nitrogen. It may be found advantageous to dispose of the right to surplus power separately with such reservations as will allow its gradual withdrawal and application to nitrogen manufacture. A subcommittee of the Committee on Agriculture should investigate this field and negotiate with prospective purchasers. No advantageous offer be made, the development should continue and the plant should be dedicated primarily to the production of materials for the fertilization of the soil.

For Encouragement of Railroad Consolidation.

The railways during the past year have made great progress in recuperation from the war, with large gains in efficiency and ability expeditiously to handle the traffic for the country. We have now passed the period of emergency legislation, it would be better to gain further experience with the present organization for dealing with these questions before undertaking a change.

Wants to Reorganize Shipping Board.

The form of the organization of the Shipping Board was based originally on its functions as a semijudicial body in regulation of rates. During the war it was loaded with enormous administrative duties. It has been demonstrated that this form of organization results in indecision, division of opinion and administrative functions, which make a wholly inadequate foundation for the conduct of a great business enterprise. The first principle in securing the objective set out by Congress in building up the American merchant marine upon the great trade routes and subsequently disposing of it into private operation can not proceed with effectiveness until the entire function of the board is reorganized. The immediate requirement is to transfer into the Emergency Fleet Corporation the whole responsibility of operation of the fleet and their property, leaving to the Shipping Board solely the duty of determining certain major policies which require deliberative action.

Honest Elections Should Be Assured.

Nothing is so fundamental to the integrity of a republican form of government as honesty in all that relates to the part of election. I am of the opinion that the national laws governing the choice of members of the Congress should be extended to include appropriate representation of the respective parts of the ballot box and equality of representation on the various registration boards, wherever they exist.

Measures Are Needed.

Pending before the Congress is a bill which has already passed one House providing for a reformatory to which could be committed first offenders and young men for the purpose of segregating them from contact with hardened criminals and providing them with special training in order to reestablish in them the power to pursue a law-abiding existence in the social and economic life of the nation. Such a measure is a matter of so much importance as to warrant the early attention of the present session. Further provision should also be made, for a like reason, for a separate reformatory for women.

Supports Proposed National Police Bureau.

Representatives of the International Police Conference will bring to the attention of the Congress a proposal for the establishment of a national police bureau. Such an action would provide a central point for gathering, compiling, and later distributing to local police authorities much information which would be helpful in the prevention and detection of crime. I believe this bureau is needed, and I recommend favorable consideration of this proposal.

Welfare Work.

The welfare work of the District of Columbia is administered by several different boards and commissions. It is a matter of great importance that these various agencies be consolidated and placed under the direction of a single commission.

Wants French Spoliation Claims Paid.

During the last session of the Congress legislation was introduced looking to the payment of the remaining claims generally referred to as the French spoliation claims. The Congress has provided for the payment of many similar claims. The balance of the unpaid claims have been long pending. The beneficiaries therefore have every reason to expect payment. These claims have been examined by the Court of Claims and their validity and amounts determined. The United States ought to pay its debts. I recommend action by the Congress to the effect that the balance of these unpaid claims be paid.

Sees Tariff as Wage Earners' Chief Aid.

Two very important policies have been adopted by this country which, while extending their benefits also in other directions, have been of the utmost importance to the wage earner. One of these is the protective tariff, which enables our people to live according to a better standard of living than any other people, anywhere on earth, ever enjoyed. This saves the American market for the products of our own industry. The other is a policy of more recent origin and seeks to shield our wage earners from the disastrous competition of a great influx of foreign peoples. This has been done by the restrictive immigration law. This saves the American job for the American worker. I should like to see the administrative features of this law rendered a little more humane for the purpose of permitting those already here a greater latitude in securing admission of members of their own families. But I believe this law in principle is necessary and sound, and destined to increase greatly the public welfare. We must maintain our own economic independence. It is gratifying to report that the progress of industry, the enormous increase in individual productivity through labor-saving devices, and the high rate of wages have all combined to furnish our people in general with such an abundance not only of laid is justice refused. Unless the Court be given power by preliminary and summary consideration to determine the importance of cases, and by disposing of those which are not of public moment reserve the time for the more extended consideration of the remainder, the congestion of the docket is likely to increase. It is also desirable that the Supreme Court should have power to improve and reform procedure in suits at law in the Federal courts through the adoption of appropriate rules. The Judiciary Committee of the Senate has reported favorably upon two bills providing for these reforms which should have the immediate favorable consideration of the Congress.

I further recommend that provision be made for the appointment of a commission, to consist of two or three members of the Federal judiciary and as many members of the bar, to examine the present criminal code of procedure and recommend to the Congress measures which may reform and expedite court procedure in the administration and enforcement of our criminal laws.

Says Prison Reform Measures Are Needed.

Pending before the Congress is a bill which has already passed one House providing for a reformatory to which could be committed first offenders and young men for the purpose of segregating them from contact with hardened criminals and providing them with special training in order to reestablish in them the power to pursue a law-abiding existence in the social and economic life of the nation. ## RESULTS IN EUROPE HAVE FULLY JUSTIFIED FOREIGN POLICIES OF U. S., HE SAYS

Opposes Covenant of League of Nations, but Again Recommends Adherence to World Court.

The necessities but of the consequences of life that are by a natural evolution solving our problems of economic and social justice. Negroes Working Out Their Own Destiny. These developments have brought about a very remarkable improvement in the condition of the negro race. Gradually, but surely, with the almost universal sympathy of those among whom they live, the colored people are working out their own destiny. I firmly believe that it is better for all concerned that they should be accorded their full constitutional rights, that they should be protected from all of those impositions to which, from their position, they naturally fall prey, especially from the crime of lynching, and that they should receive every encouragement to become full partners in all the blessings of our common American citizenship.

Would Put Dry Agents Under Civil Service.

The merit system has long been recognized as the correct basis for employment in our civil service. I believe that first, second and third class postmasters, and without covering in the present membership the field force of prohibition enforcement, should be brought within the classified service by statute law. Otherwise the executive order of one administration is changed by the executive order of another administration and little real progress is made. Whatever its defects, the merit system is certainly to be preferred to the spoils system.

Reorganization Vital as Companion to Budget.

One way to save public money would be to pass the pending bill for the reorganization of the various departments. This project has been pending for some time, and has had the most careful consideration of experts and the thorough study of a special congressional commission. This legislation is vital as a companion piece to the budget law. Legal authority for a thorough reorganization of the Federal structure with some latitude of action to the executive in the rearrangement of secondary functions would make for continuing economy in the shift of Government activities which must follow every change in a developing country. Beyond this many of the independent agencies of the Government must be placed under responsible Cabinet officials, if we are to have satisfactory efficiency, economy and probity.

Need of the Army and Navy.

Little has developed in relation to our national defense which needs special attention. Progress is constantly being made in air navigation and requires encouragement and development. Army aviators have made a successful trip around the world, for which I recommend suitable recognition through provisions for promotion, compensation, and retirement. Under the direction of the Navy a new Zeppelin has been successfully brought from Europe across the Atlantic to our own country. Due to the efficient supervision of the Secretary of War, the Army of the United States has been organized with a small body of regulars and a moderate National Guard and reserve. The defense test of Sept. 12 demonstrated the efficiency of the operating plans. These methods and operations are well worthy of congressional support.

Under the Limitation of Armaments Treaty a Large Saving Outlay and a Considerable Decrease in Maintenance of the Navy has been accomplished.

We should maintain the policy of development working toward the full strength of the Navy. Careful investigation is being made in this department of the relative importance of aircraft, surface and submarine vessels, in order that we may not fail to take advantage of all modern improvements for our national defense. A special commission has been organized to investigate the problem of petroleum oil for the Navy, considering the best policy to insure the future supply of fuel oil and prevent the threatened drain of naval oil reserves. Legislative action is required to carry on experiments in oil shale reduction, as large deposits of this type have been set aside for the use of the Navy. We have been constantly besought to engage in competitive armaments. Results will reach us of the magnitude of the military equipment of other nations. We shall do well to be little impressed by such reports of such actions and any nation undertaking to maintain a military establishment with aggressive and imperialistic designs will find itself severely handicapped in the economic development of the world. I believe thoroughly in the Army and Navy, in adequate defense and preparation. But I am opposed to any policy of competition in building and maintaining land or sea armaments.

Armed Forces as a Peace Guarantee Only.

Our country has definitely relinquished the old standard of dealing with other countries by terror and force, and is definitely committed to the new standard of dealing with them through friendship and understanding. This new policy should be constantly kept in mind by the guiding forces of the Army and Navy, by the Congress and by the country at large. I believe it holds a promise of great benefit to humanity. I shall resist any attempt to resort to the old methods and the old standards. I am especially solicitous that foreign nations should comprehend the candor and sincerity with which we have adopted this position. While we propose to maintain defensive and supplementary police forces by land and sea, and to train them through inspections and maneuvers upon suitable occasions in order to maintain their efficiency, I wish every other nation to understand that this does not express any intention to attack or to invade the intent. I want the armed forces of America to be considered by all peoples not as enemies but as friends, as the contribution which is made by our country for the maintenance of the peace and security of the world.

Veteran Problem One of Administration.

With the authorization for general hospitalization of the veterans of the great war provided during the present year, the care and treatment of those who have served their country in time of peril and the attitude of the Government toward them is not now so much one of needed legislation as one of careful, generous and humane administration. It will ever be recognized that their welfare is of the first concern and always entitled to the most solicitous consideration on the part of their fellow citizens. They are organized in various associations, of which the chief and most representative is the American Legion. Through its officers the legion will present to the Congress numerous suggestions for legislation. They cover such a wide variety of subjects that it is impossible to discuss them within the scope of this message. With many of the proposals I join in hearty approval and commend them all to the sympathetic investigation and consideration of the Congress.

Foreign Policies Justified by Results.

At no period in the past 12 years have our foreign relations been in such a satisfactory condition as they are at the present time. Our actions in the recent months have greatly strengthened the permanent peace with independence. The attitude which our Government took and maintained toward an adjustment of European reparations, by pointing out that it was not a political but a business problem, has demonstrated its wisdom by its actual results. We desire to see Europe restored that it may resume its productivity in the increase of industry and its support in the advance of civilization. We look with great gratification at the hopeful prospect of recuperation in Europe through the Dawes plan. Such assistance as can be given through the action of the public authorities and of our private citizens, through friendly counsel and co-operation, and through economic and financial support, for any warlike effort, but for reproductive enterprise, not to provide means for unseasoned government financing, but to establish sound business administration, should be unhesitatingly provided. ### TEXT OF PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

Ultimately nations, like individuals, can not depend upon each other, but must depend upon themselves. Each one must work out its own salvation. We have every desire to help. But with all our resources we are powerless to assist unless our efforts meet with a constructive response. The situation in our own country and all over the world is one that can be improved only by hard work and self-denial. It is necessary to reduce expenditures, increase savings and liquidate debts. It is in this direction that there lies the greatest hope of doing for the tranquility and international peace. Our own country ought to furnish the leading example in this effort. Our past adherence to this policy, our constant refusal to maintain a military establishment that could be thought to menace the security of others, our honorable dealings with other nations whether great or small, have left us in the almost constant enjoyment of peace.

It is not necessary to stress the general desire of all the people of this country for the promotion of peace. It is the leading principle of all our foreign relations. We have on every occasion tried to co-operate to this end in all ways that were consistent with our proper independence and our traditional policies. It will be my constant effort to maintain these principles, and to reinforce them by all appropriate agreements and treaties. While we desire always to co-operate and to help, we are equally determined to be independent and free. Right and truth and justice and humanitarian efforts will have the moral support of this country all over the world. But we do not wish to become involved in the political controversies of others. Nor is the country disposed to become a member of the League of Nations or to assume the obligations imposed by its covenant.

America has been one of the foremost nations in advocating tribunals for the settlement of international disputes of a justiciable character. Our representatives took a leading part in those conferences which resulted in the establishment of The Hague Tribunal, and later in providing for a Permanent Court of International Justice. I believe it would be for the advantage of this country and helpful to the stability of other nations for us to adhere to the protocol establishing that court over the conditions stated in the recommendation which is now before the Senate, and further that our country shall not be bound by advisory opinions which may be rendered by the court upon questions which we have not voluntarily submitted for its judgment. This court would provide a practical and convenient tribunal before which we could go voluntarily, but to which we could not be summoned, for a determination of justiciable questions when they fail to be resolved by diplomatic negotiations.

Expects to Broach Another Disarmament Conference.

Many times I have expressed my desire to see the work of the Washington Conference on Limitation of Armaments appropriately supplemented by further agreements for a further reduction and for the purpose of diminishing the military and waste of the competition in preparing instruments of international war. It has been and is my expectation that we might hopefully approach other great Powers for further conference on this subject as soon as the carrying out of the present preparation plan as the established and settled policy of Europe has created a favorable opportunity. But on account of proposals which have already been made by other Governments for a European conference, it will be necessary to wait to see what the outcome of their actions may be. I should not wish to propose or have representatives attend a conference which would contemplate commitments opposed to the freedom of action we desire to maintain unimpaired with respect to our purely domestic policies.

For Codification of International Law.

Our country should also support efforts which are being made toward the codification of international law. We can look more hopefully, in the first instance, for research and studies that are likely to be productive of results. It is a co-operation among representatives of the bar and members of international law institutes and societies, than to a conference of those who are technically representative of their respective governments, although, when projects have been developed, they must go to the governments for their approval. These expert professional studies are going on in certain quarters and should have our constant encouragement and approval.

"Views With Sympathy" War Outlawry Plans.

Much interest has of late been manifested in this country in the discussion of various proposals to outlaw aggressive war. I look with great sympathy upon the examination of this subject. It is in harmony with the traditional policy of our country, which is against aggressive war and for the maintenance of permanent and honorable peace. While, as have said, we must safeguard

our liberty to deal according to our own judgment with our domestic policies, we cannot fail to

With your watch in your hand, take the drink at one swallow and call for your money back in two minutes if you cannot feel the distressing symptoms of your cold fading away like a dream, within the time limit. Don't be bashful, for all druggists invite you and expect you to try it. Everybody's doing it. Take the remainder of the bottle home to your wife and children, for Aspirinal is by far the safest and most effective, the easiest to take and the most agreeable cold and cough remedy for children as well as adults. ### The Best Cough Syrup is Home-Made

Here's an easy way to save $2.00. You've probably heard of making cough syrup at home. But have you used it? Thousands of families, world over, feel that they can't keep house without it. It's simple and cheap, but the way it takes hold of a cough will soon make it a permanent place in your home. Into a pint bottle, pour 2 1/2 cups of Pinex; then add plain granulated sugar syrup to fill up the pint. If desired, use clarified molasses or corn syrup, instead of sugar syrup. Either way, it's good, never spoils, and gives you full pint of better cough remedy than you could buy ready-made three times its cost.

It is really wonderful how quick this home-made remedy conquers cough—usually in 24 hours or less. It seems to penetrate through the air passage, loosens a dry, hoarse, tight cough, lifts the phlegm, breaks the membranes, and gives almost immediate relief. Splendid for the tickle, hoarseness, croup, bronchitis and bronchial asthma.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of genuine Norway spruce extract, and has been used for generations for throat and chest ailments.

To avoid disappointment ask druggist for "2 1/2 ounces of Pinex with directions, and don't ask for anything else. Guaranteed to give absolute satisfaction or money refunded. The Pinex Co., Ft. Wayne, Ind.

POSTAL SERVICE OF U. S. HANDLED AT LOSS, NEW SAYS

First-Class Mail and the Savings Department Are Only Branches Showing Profit, Senate Hears.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Dec. 2.—With the exception of first-class mail and postal savings, every service conducted by the Postoffice Department shows a substantial annual loss, Postmaster-General New informed the Senate today, as a result of a far-reaching investigation.

Handling of second-class mail—newspapers and magazines—is done at a loss to the Government of $4,432,000 a year, the report said, and third-class mail at a loss of 7,004,665 cents a year.

Fourth-class mail, parcel post, was handled at a loss of 1,124,343 cents a year, but the first-class mail, letters, etc., showed a profit of 25,086,999 cents a year.

New, in submitting the report, said it was merely a fact-finding statement, and he made no recommendation with respect to postage rates.

Loss of $39,805,702. The revenues and costs were computed on the fiscal year of 1923. It was shown that total revenues for the year were $534,413,171 and expenditures $574,218,873, with a loss of $39,805,702. Paid first-class mail was handled at a profit of $20,417,716 and the postal saving system at a profit of $4,701,411.

The losses were largest in second-class mail, newspapers and magazines, which showed a deficit of $74,712,868, and third-class mail, on which the loss was $16,291,575. The next highest loss was in the registry service, with a total deficit of $10,374,013. On fourth-class mail or parcel post the loss amounted to $6,916,753.

Handling of franked matter resulted in a loss of $357,819 and penalty matter $6,214,131. The money order system showed a loss of $9,540,511, and foreign mail was handled at a loss of $4,503,838.

Losses in Other Branches. Losses in other branches of the service were:

Insurance of parcels, $1,145,959; cash on delivery service, $1,825,437; handling Treasury saving certificates, $221,809, and the carrying of matter free for the blind, $27,315.

The weights of the mails on which the costs and revenues were computed for 1923 were:

First-class mail, 320,555,512 pounds, or 5.62 per cent of the weight of all mail.

Second-class mail, 1,381,645,181, or 24.24 per cent of all mail.

Third-class mail, 232,582,062 pounds, or 4.08 per cent.

Fourth-class mail, 3,394,619,315 pounds, or 63.08 per cent.

Foreign mail, 73,793,050 pounds, or 1.29 per cent.

Negotiations were begun today for an agreement for a date to take a vote on President Coolidge's veto of the postal salary increase bill.

Meanwhile, Senator Edge (Rep.), New Jersey, brought forward another measure to readjust postal salaries in the light of the Postmaster-General's fact-finding report.

Under Guard.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., Dec. 2.—

Instead of transferring Dr. George T. Edwards, who is held on a Coroner's warrant, charging murder of his wife, Annie Lou Edwards, from Ensley Hospital to the Birmingham branch jail, it was decided this afternoon that the physician would attend his wife's funeral at Montgomery tomorrow, under guard.

Edwards is still suffering from effects of a wound in the left hand, which, he said, was caused by an assailant who shot him after his wife had been slain in the Edwards home early yesterday. His condition is such that surgeons said he might be removed to jail. He was arrested yesterday and a guard kept at his bedside through the night.

A small ax, smeared with a red substance, is said to constitute the newest bit of evidence. It was said to have been found in the basement of the Edwards home. The substance on the ax will be subjected to chemical examination.

CAIRO SLAYER PLEADS GUILTY

By the Associated Press.

CAIRO, Ill., Dec. 2.—Frank George, 60 years old, slayer of Mrs. W. F. Gibbs, today pleaded guilty to a charge of murder after a jury yesterday found him sane and was sentenced to life imprisonment.

George killed Mrs. Gibbs, April 7, last, when he entered the hotel in which she was employed and emptied a revolver into her body without a word.

An odd tangle, involving Bertha Gibbs, 25, daughter of the slain woman, who is reported seriously ill in a St. Louis hospital, was indicated by the defense as the cause of the slaying. George was in love with the girl, 26 years his junior, it was said, but she did not return his affection. The mother, a former sweetheart of George, had objected to the attentions of the man to her daughter.

KORETZ EXPECTED TO BEGIN PRISON TERM ON FRIDAY

$2,000,000 Swindler Enters Flea of Guilty to 4
Counts in Indictment—To Be Sentenced Tomorrow.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Leo Koretz, promoter for 18 years of a Panama oil scheme in which $2,000,000 was invested by his friends and relatives, will be serving a penitentiary sentence before Saturday, according to Robert E. Crowe, State's Attorney.

Koretz this afternoon pleaded guilty to four counts of the indictment charging larceny, larceny by bailment and operation of a confidence game. Each charge carries a penalty of from one to 10 years' imprisonment. He will be sentenced tomorrow afternoon.

Koretz, who eluded arrest for a year in Halifax, N. S., where he fled when his oil bubble burst, was getting ready to seek election to the Provincial Parliament there, under the name of Lou Keyte, when he was arrested 10 days ago. He has admitted to authorities that he had political ambitions and that friends were grooming him for the post. Some electioneering already had been done, he said.

Liabilities $1,763,548.34. A statement filed in Bankruptcy Court shows Koretz's total liabilities are $1,763,548.34. His assets are $335,049.55 and a total deficit of $1,428,498.79. Among more than 100 individuals and firms to whom the list showed he owed money were six members of the Koretz family, to whom he owes upwards of $160,000. The largest creditor is Henry A. Klein, to whom Koretz was listed as owing $242,000.

Koretz appeared again last night in bankruptcy court.

As the questioning continued, Koretz appeared to be fatigued to the point of exhaustion. He was questioned about the sale of stock in the Arkansas Farm Corporation, one of his earlier ventures.

Earlier in the day Koretz amused his questioners by relating how a "prominent Chicago business man," with whom he had never been on very friendly terms, came to him and asked him "for the sake of our great friendship" to sell him some of the Bayano stock.

Partners in Rush for Stock. Koretz said he obligingly granted the favor, whereupon the business man's partner came in the next day and demanded that he also be given a slice of the stock. Koretz was again persuaded to part with some of the paper for cash and the next day the first business man came back, much aggrieved because his partner had secured more stock "than was sold to me when I found you first," Koretz said he sold the first enough stock to make his rate equally with his partner.

"And this," he added, as his audience laughed, "was no unusual case."

Said he first started swindling operations when he sold one of his first clients a fake mortgage. Koretz was then fleeced himself by a man who induced him to go in with others and invest $10,000 in land in Panama. He said he went to Panama and found that the land was not only worthless, but that the man who had "sold" it did not even own it.

This man's scheme, he said, stuck in his mind and finally when he launched his Bayano River scheme and announced that oil had been discovered, money poured in from everywhere and many of his friends wanted positions in the fictitious enterprise.

Took $175,000 In Flight. When he fled from Chicago, a year ago, after some of those who had invested their money started for Panama to investigate, Koretz said he withdrew from Chicago banks about $500,000. Of this sum he retained about $175,000 and gave the rest to relatives whom he had fleeced. The rest of the $2,000,000, he said, had been used to defray his high living expenses. Once he said, he paid 5 per cent or to pay handsome dividends to investors to retain their confidence. Once he said, he paid 5 per cent or to pay handsome dividends to investors to retain their confidence.

Here's What Happened!

"One day I left my ironing and forgot to turn off the current. When I returned, the Sunbeam was red-hot—so hot I could almost see through it. But it didn't hurt my Sunbeam a bit, except to discolor the nickel. It ironed just as well now as before. It heats up perfectly and holds the heat just fine. I think the Sunbeam is truly a wonderful iron."

Mrs. W. J. Martin
7336 University Ave., Chicago

50c Laundry Book FREE

"How to Launder Clothes Properly" is a delightful new book by Katherine Miller that women will find extremely helpful. For the next two weeks we'll send a copy free to every woman who turns in the coupon below when she buys a Sunbeam Iron on approval. Tell your dealer to mail us the coupon if you get the iron from him.

"When I Returned the Iron Was Red-Hot; So Hot I Could Almost See Through It!"

Another iron ruined? No—Another Proof that Over-Heating Does Not Harm the Sunbeam

A Gift Any Woman Would Thrill to Get for Christmas

THIS is not an invitation to set fire to the house by leaving electric irons turned on while not in use. But it shows what a durable heating unit the Sunbeam Iron must have to withstand over-heating that would spoil any ordinary iron. Read Mrs. Martin's statement.

Yes, women occasionally do forget to turn off an iron while they answer the door-bell or the telephone. The iron becomes over-heated. Next ironing day it won't heat up as before, and won't hold its heat. And a new unit costs $2 or $3.50 installed.

Records of one large Public Service Company indicate that 70% of iron repairs are in the heating unit.

An Even Heat and Heat All Over

In the New Sunbeam Iron we've built a unit that over-heating does not harm. And we've built it to cover practically the whole ironing surface. So you get a quick heat All-Over—not heat in certain spots alone.

More than that—we regulate its heating capacity to give you even heat and plenty of it—but not the rush of violent heat that scorches clothes.

Before we built it we took all kinds of irons apart. And we found there was no machine that could build an All-Over unit like this. So we make it by hand, although that costs us double.

Mirror-Like Sole-Plate—Tapered Nose for Gathers

We spend a premium also to double-nickel and double-polish the sole-plate. But this mirror-like Sunbeam gives you beautiful results—a high gloss to linens and starched things. And its easy glide rests your ironing arm.

The nose is gracefully tapered to get into gathers, pleats and corners. And it brings out embroidery in stunning relief. For it goes right into the spaces between the needlework, when you iron such pieces wrong-side up on a soft thick towel.

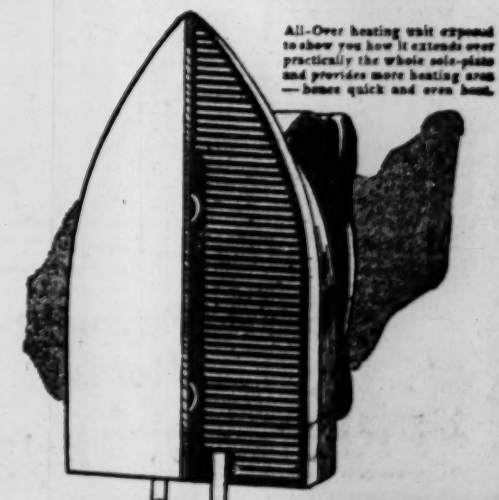

Like many other Sunbeam users, Mrs. G. Busse of Ewing Ave., Chicago, gets through her ironing by noon, and her washings are larger than those of a relative who irons all day.

RAMACCIOTTI ELECTED CAPTAIN OF 1925 ST. LOUIS U. FOOTBALL TEAM

Fullback Chosen Unanimously to Lead Billikens

Speaker at Banquet to Players Calls 1924 School's Greatest Gridiron Season.

24 MEN GET LETTERS

Tribute Paid to Coaches Savage and Brown for Their Success With Small Squad.

Frank Ramacciotti, fullback and outstanding star of the 1924 St. Louis University football team, was unanimously chosen captain of the 1925 football squad at the annual banquet tendered the players last night by the student convocation.

Bill McKenney, who graduated in June and goes back to Mississippi to practice dentistry, Ramacciotti's home in Omaha, Neb., and he obtained his prep training at St. Mary's, Kan.

The election of "Ram" came as a climax to an evening of spirited speeches among which those of Head Coach Savage and Dr. John L. Tierney stood out. The newly appointed captain made a brief address which was received with a wild burst of applause.

Sol W. Gross was toastmaster of the evening and introduced the speakers, who were the coaches, Father Schulte, Father William Ryan, head of the new high school; Alphonse G. Eberle, dean of the law school; H. J. McMahon, president of the athletic board; Dr. John L. Tierney, and others.

"Billikens' Greatest Season." The past season was characterized by one speaker as the "greatest in the athletic history of St. Louis University, not excepting the days when Eddie Cochems was coach."

Tribute was paid to the late performed by Savage and Brown in developing a powerful eleven from a squad that did not number over 25 members all season.

Paddy Fitzgerald, trainer, and Jimmy Finnegan, freshman coach, also came in for their share of praise.

Coach Savage paid tribute to the spirit and courage of the players. He declared, among other things, that the acquisition of the Grand and Laclede gridiron and the inauguration of the training house system had much to do with the success of the year, particularly in uplifting the morale of the players.

Assistant Coach Brown expressed satisfaction with the results obtained by the coaching department. Savage had previously paid him hearty tribute for his work with the Billikens line.

No Schedule Announcement. No announcement was made as to the 1925 schedule but it is already understood that the authorities are looking for games with several Eastern and Big Ten teams.

Ramacciotti, the new captain, has been a great scorer all season. On more than one occasion he has pulled a game out of the fire with a long run. The Michigan Aggie game saw him at his best when he made the coasting drive in the last few minutes of play by dashing more than half the length of the field for a touchdown, in a similar way the spirited struggle with Loyola of Chicago was won.

Ramacciotti is about six feet tall and scales 185 pounds. He is fast and an expert in the use of the straight arm. He is a triple threat man, being adept at running, passing and punting.

Letters for 24 Men. Twenty-three players and Student Manager J. J. Leitch received letters. The players are: Capt. McKenney, Amarel, Schwartz, Hannagan, Krug, Klausner, Ramacciotti, Hight, O'Toole, Stanton, Kahle, O'Reilly, Karst, Kearns, Lewis, Mahoney, Wentker, Simon, Sullivan, Fitzgerald, Carlstrom, Clark and Fischer. Each member of the squad was given a gold football watch charm by the Student Convocation.

Freshmen numerals were awarded the following: Buckley, Breckel, Creel, Feld, Holz, Jordan, McCarthy, Machaca, Morris, Oelschlaeger, Weasel, Riordan, Pape, Mueller, Russell, Smith, Strong, Yeck and Thomas.

The Rev. Theodore J. Schulte, S. J., faculty representative, started a movement last night for a gymnasium, a facility which has long been needed at the Billiken institution. The six members of the varsity squad who played their last football this year gave the movement impetus by contributing $10 each.

Ten dollar subscriptions are to be solicited until a sufficiently large sum is obtained to arouse faculty action. All contributions are to be made payable to the Rev. Theodore Schulte.

SAM WHITEMAN ELECTED MISSOURI U. CAPTAIN

Special to the Post-Dispatch. COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 3.—Sam Whiteman of Richmond, Mo., halfback, was unanimously selected captain of the 1925 University of Missouri football team, at a meeting of the 1924 squad here this afternoon. Whiteman played his second year for the Tigers this year and showed much ability, not only at carrying the ball but at passing and point kicking.

Valley's Leading Basket Shooter Again in Uniform

McBride of Oklahoma Led Conference in Field Goals Last Season.

Special to the Post-Dispatch. COLUMBIA, Mo., Dec. 3.—With a squad of about 20 men, including nine veterans from last year's cage team, George A. Bond, University of Missouri basketball coach, is getting down to work in earnest this week in preparation for the 1925 Missouri Valley Conference schedule which opens early in January. The Tigers have been working three times a week since early in the fall, but have been materially handicapped by the absence of several players who are expected to form the backbone of the Tiger team this year, but who were not released from football until after Thanksgiving day.

Now with his full squad available, Bond is rushing preparations to put it as near top form as possible before the Christmas holidays. The veterans upon whom Bond is depending to give Missouri a better finish next season than the second division berth into which they slipped in the spring of 1924, includes Capt. Wheat, Buckner, Lewis, Walsh, McMillan, Fordyce, Smith, Meeker and Whiteman. Of these Lewis, Whiteman, Smith and Walsh have been on the football squad, as have O'Sullivan, Enoch, Stuber, Lindenmeyer and Tuttle, some of the most promising recruits from last year's freshman squad. Other sophomores who are making a bid for places on the varsity this year include McDonough, Manners, Laughlin, Braun, Joyner, Niedorp and McClelland.

Jayhawkers Won Last Year. Kansas, Oklahoma, Nebraska and Washington, the four schools which last year fought for first place, appear to be as strong this year. The Jayhawkers finished first last year with 15 victories out of 19 games in the conference last year, only three behind the Grinnell, Roelster and Drake and Wabash of Oklahoma—will be missing this year.

Ackerman of Kansas, fourth among the scorers last year, and the Jayhawkers' man of the year, C. C. Allen's Jayhawkers, is again in conference competition, along with Eckert, Belkard, Wright, Wilkins, Heckert, Hodges, Hitt, Daniels and play, while the Grinnell team, including Zuber, Starr, Terman and J. Indley, are also reported to be a cage team.

McBride Back at Oklahoma. At Oklahoma Coach McDermott has services of McBride, star forward of last year, who was finally dethroned in the scoring race, but who led throughout the season in number of field goals, and Dunlap, Wheeler, Honea, Goodwin and Runyon of last year, while Nebraska, with Fisher, Cozier, Goodson, Tippton and Voiz, all veterans, is scarcely less formidable.

Grinnell has suffered a loss in Bond, who was champion scorer last year, but still has such veterans as Boge, Gelvin, Vint, and Cushman; while Drake, though lacking the accurate shooting of last year, has several other members of Ossie Solem's 1924 squad.

Bunker and Tebbe, both of whom ranked high in scoring last year, are on hand again this season to lead the Kansas Aggie offense, with veteran support in the hands of last year, while Nebraska, with Fisher, Cozier, Goodson, Tippton and Voiz, all veterans, is scarcely less formidable.

WRAY'S COLUMN

Get Together. JOHN MCGRAW adds his opinion to the prevailing belief that an injustice was done Rogers Hornsby when Dazzy Vance was named "most valuable player" by the National League Commission.

"Hornsby is a far more valuable player than Vance," is McGraw's view.

That does not make it right; but it adds weight to popular belief.

The affair may have one good result: It may cause the commission to be more careful in the selection of the "best player" of the future.

We hope it may lead up to a fusing of the two leagues into one enormous league, which would make two selections for both leagues: First, the most valuable player; second, the most valuable pitcher.

At Last a Monument. AN added advantage of this joint working out of the problem would be that Ban Johnson's pet scheme of a baseball monument in Potomac Park, Maryland, might be authorized by Congress.

As Johnson's plan now stands, it appeals to the Senators and Congressmen merely as an enormous advertisement for the American League. No sanction for the idea in its present form can be hoped for. But with both leagues united on the subject, Congressional approval would be forthcoming.

Improving. AFTER suffering several setbacks since his invasion of these United States, Ted Moore, the British middleweight boxer, has found success in the United States. According to a hearing that developed in a New York police court, he beat his landlady. The magnates, meeting in executive session behind closed doors, instructed Secretary Farrell to notify all minor league clubs when a major league club had exhausted its quota of eight optional players sent to the minors. Any minor league club using an optional player from a club which already has eight men on option will forfeit all games in which the ninth optional player participates.

The convention adjourned until tomorrow morning.

Player Deale Announced. W. J. Wolf, leading outfielder of the Pacific Coast League this year, with a batting average of .324, was purchased by Vernon from Portland.

Rudy Kallio, outfielder, went from Salt Lake City to the Boston Red Sox for a cash consideration. Outfielder Connelly and another player to be selected.

Frank Weyenberg, Saginaw (Ontario) pitcher, was bought by Kansas City.

Mark Shay, infielder of the Boston Braves, was sold to the Shreveport team of the Texas League.

Pitchers Lee Farris and Walter House and Outfielder Rudolph Swanson were purchased by Minneapolis from the Burlington (Ia.) club of the Mississippi Valley League.

Schreiber, Columbus shortstop, goes to Minneapolis for Outfielder Robert Blessing and Third Baseman Campbell.

All events on the Coliseum wrestling program will go to a fall tomorrow night, promoters announced today. Instead of time-limit preliminaries and semi-finals, the events will all have a real climax.

The feature event on the card will be an exhibition between the Japanese Jiu Jitsu wrestler, Mayake, and Oreste Vadafri, an Italian heavyweight. It is expected that the new plan will not interfere with the starting of the main event at 10 o'clock.

John Ewko, credited with a defeat of Wladek Zyzsko and with gaining a fall over Joe Stecher, though himself defeated in the match, will meet George Hills in the semi-final. This will be a one-fall contest, as will the preliminary between George Tragos and Dr. Carl Furness.

Minor Leagues To Inquire Into Gambling Charge

Ban Johnson's Allegations About Operations on Coast To Be Investigated.

By the Associated Press. HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 3.—The National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues in session here today appointed a committee to investigate Ban Johnson's charges of gambling in baseball on the Pacific Coast.

The committee was instructed to report on what course of action was necessary to get to the foundation of Johnson's charges.

The magnates also voted to eliminate the 2 per cent deduction on all options, sales agreements and transfers, to take effect at the close of the 1924 season. Heretofore the 2 per cent has been deducted to go into the National Association treasury, but in view of the large balance on hand, the magnates decided to eliminate this tariff.

Los Angeles was asked today at the convention city for 1925. This evening the association will be entertained at a banquet in the Hotel Bond by James H. Clark, local owner.

Committee Named. President M. H. Sexton appointed John D. Martin of Memphis, Tenn.; W. G. Bramham of Durham, N. C., and Oscar Reichow of Los Angeles, on the committee to investigate the charges of gambling in Coast baseball circles. The committee was instructed to report tomorrow.

The magnates, meeting in executive session behind closed doors, instructed Secretary Farrell to notify all minor league clubs when a major league club had exhausted its quota of eight optional players sent to the minors. A. L. President Violated
"Please Be Kind" Clause in Comment on World Series.

HARTFORD, Conn., Dec. 3.— Ban Johnson, president of the American League, or Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis must go, according to reports current here between sessions of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues.

Johnson and Landis have been at loggerheads for months. The major leagues meet in New York
next week and it is understood
there will be a showdown between Johnson and Landis.

The commissioner did not come
out for the minor league sessions either did Johnson. Baseball men here are of the opinion that baseball fireworks will be ignited
at next week's meeting.

Ever since the demise of the old National Commission there has been friction between Landis and Johnson. They had different ideas concerning how the game should be conducted and although Johnson is a member of the so-called advisory council there has been no teamwork between him and Landis.

First Flagrant Violation.
Prior to the last world series,
Johnson came out with a decided slap at Landis for not calling off
the games when the scandal involving the Giants arose. At that time, Johnson declared the series should be called off and took orders to assault the commissioner.

Landis did not respond to this. In the national agreement there is a paragraph by which the baseball authorities bind themselves to keep out of each other's way. That was observed for some time. But Johnson outburst was the first flagrant violation of the "Please be kind" clause.

Hard to Remove Either.

How Johnson can be removed as president of the league he founded has not been made plain. It is not thought that he will step down of his own accord, and it may be impossible to shove him. He has been in a great many baseball battles.
The commissioner cannot be removed without his own consent. At one period of his baseball experience, when the league owners had announced they might censure him,
he went into a joint meeting in Chicago, reached into his pocket
and came up with a document.

"There, gentlemen, is my consent," he said. "You may tear it up at your pleasure."

The proprietors of the major leagues intended to assure him that his services had been satisfactory.
Indeed, those who were in that meeting said the magnates were rather panicky, wondering what a reaction with the Judge
would have on public sentiment.

Although the minor leagues are under the jurisdiction of the commissioner, they have nothing to say about his employment. He is hired man for the 16 major clubs and although the owners subscribed to the provision that put the old National Commission out of business, they do not contribute a nickel to the support of the supreme court of baseball.

Big Surplus on Hand.
Judge Landis' office is financed by world's series receipts. It is said to cost about $100,000 a year,
which includes his salary of $50,- 000, that of his secretary and office employees and expenses incidental to a job of this proportion. A considerable surplus has been stored up in recent years. The world's series played in the immense New York parks brought in millions of dollars, and the commissioner's percentage of the gross receipts exceeds the requirements of his office.

This money must be disposed of
in some manner and has been the subject of considerable speculation
in the part of those interested.
The National League has been inclined to request the cutting of a coupon, but the American League owners thought it best to leave
the money remain in a lump sum
to be used in a case of emergency.

When the Federal League was formed, organized baseball had no surplus, and the financial crisis incident to combating the cheap "outlaws" fell heavily on the purses of many of the club owners.

The size of the commissioner's power has been made public.
It must be a considerable sum.
The series in recent years has brought him better than $150,000
in October.

Run-up Shot Best When Within 20 Yards of Green, Longworth Says

Here is shown the top of the back stroke for the short run-up shot. Again notice the position of the hands, the face of the club. Study the photographs in connection with the accompanying instructive article and study them as you practice the short-run-up shot.

Use of Iron With a Slight Loft, and Open Stance, Advocated by Instructor—Back Stroke Regulates the Distance.

The following is the second of a series of 20 articles on golf by Art Longworth, instructor at the St. Louis Country Club, and champion among Missouri professionals. In these articles Longworth will give advice on the use of all clubs, explain common mistakes by players and tell how to meet difficult situations on the links. In connection with this series, Longworth will answer questions on golf for readers of the Post-Dispatch.

By Art Longworth,
Professional at the St. Louis Country Club.

(Copyright, 1924.)
WHEN your ball lies about 20 yards from or nearer the green and you have smooth ground between the ball and the cup, that is, no bunkers or obstacles to deflect or catch the ball, the run-up shot is the correct one to make. It is the safest, the surest and the easiest shot a golfer always takes the easiest shot.

It is at this distance from the pin that so many golfers make the mistake of choosing the wrong club. Too many golfers try to play the ball into the air, which obviously is more difficult. It is much more difficult to gauge the speed and it is always more difficult to gauge a pitch shot than a run-up shot. My advice to all golfers is to play the ball low. Use your mashie nibble and pitch shots only when it is necessary, only when there is some obstacle that you must clear to get to the green.

Use Iron for Run-Up.
FOR the run-up shot I use and recommend a No. 4 or No. 3 iron, that is, an iron with a slight loft, one between a midiron and mashie.

In playing this shot, use an open stance, that is, with the right foot slightly advanced—five inches or so—with the weight equally distributed on both feet. I use the overlapping grip and in taking the grip I always hold the thumb of my right hand straight down the shaft. This steadies the club and prevents the wrists from breaking and overdoing their part of the work. This point should be watched carefully.

Remember to keep your wrists firm and unbroken as the club hits the ball. Take the club head back with both hands and hit with the right, giving the ball a firm rap, with a follow through toward the hole.

I have been asked frequently how to determine how hard to hit the ball. No rules can be laid down, obviously, for distance. The individual must learn to gauge the force of the hit, but I might say that the distance should determine the back stroke. For a short run-up the back stroke should be moderate, as the distance from the green increases the back stroke becomes greater.

Never Hold Back on Shot.
IN this way each shot is made with the same firmness. You doubtless have tried to hold back on a short shot. That is not necessary. You can't hold back and make a good shot. Merely decrease the length of your back stroke. If you see Bobby Jones play, note his short approach. There is no holding back. He invariably hits a firm crisp rap. There is no hold.

You leave nothing to chance when you buy from Glenn. His 35 years' experience in St. Louis qualifies him to select quality.

Here is shown the stance for the run-up shot. It is slightly open, with the right foot five or six inches ahead of the left. Note the way the toes are pointed. Also note the grip, with the right thumb on the shaft. Longworth says this steadies the shot. Also note that the hands are slightly ahead of the head of the club. This enables the golfer to put a "drag" on the ball. Also notice the position of the ball, favoring the left foot.

Longworth Recognized
As Master at Short
Run-ups to the Pin

IN giving advice on the playing of the short run-up shot,
Art Longworth is dealing with a shot at which he excels.
"Who is the most accurate
man in the district at getting the ball up to the pin from near the green?" was a question put to Fred Clarkson, professional at Glen Echo. Clarkson is a fine instructor, an excellent golfer and a student of the game. He is shrewd, but he hesitated not a second over his answer.

"Art Longworth," he replied.
"Nobody in the district can touch him when it comes to shots near the green. And he ranks high nationally with his short game."

The next article in the Art Longworth series will appear in the Post-Dispatch Sunday. He will deal with "chip shots with the mashie and mashie-nibble."

U.S.G.A. Will Adopt New Ball,
Gardner Says

Vice-President of Organization
Says Action Will be Taken at January Meeting.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Robert A.
Gardner, vice president of the United States Golf Association,
speaking before the Chicago District Golf Association, of which he is president, announced that the parent body would adopt the light ball at the annual conference
in January and would stage the International Walker Cup matches
every two years instead of one,
as at present.

The lighter ball, Gardner said,
had been shown by experiment to rise easier and carry within a few yards of the distance obtained by the present missile.

Difficulty in financing yearly trips occasioned the change in the Walker Cup competition, he said.
Under the new arrangement, a United States team will visit England in 1926 and the Britons will return here in 1928.

Gardner was re-elected head of the district association.

The new standard golf ball,
which will be adopted, to be the official tournament ball after Jan.
1, 1926, will be 1.55 ounces in weight and 1.68 inches in diameter, being lighter and larger than the present ball, which is 1.62 ounces in weight and 1.62
inches in diameter.

The reason for the change is the fear that the present lively ball may get beyond control, making annual changes necessary in golf courses to keep up with the liveliness of the ball.

Steinke Defeats
Wladek Zbyszko

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Hans Steinke, giant German wrestler,
last night defeated Wladek Zbyszko
in a finish match, two out of three falls here.

Steinke took the first fall in 26m. 47s. with a toe-hold. Zbyszko conceding the fall, Zbyszko took the second in 28m. 40s. with a body hold and Steinke took the third in 17m. 27s. with a body hold. The result was a surprise to wrestling fans.

In the semi-final, Jim London
won a one-fall match from Yurko Zaryoff in 21m 17s with a Japanese flip.

Levi Sacrifices $1000
To Play Post-Season
Game for the Indians

MUSKOGEE, Ok., Dec. 3.—
It will cost John Levi, star tackleback of the Haskell Indians $1000 to play against the Oklahoma Baptist University
team here Saturday. It was revealed here today by Frank McDonald, business manager of the Indian team.

After the Indians closed their regular season on Thanksgiving day with a victory over St.
Xavier at Cincinnati, the manager of a professional team at Cincinnati offered the big Indian star $1000 to play with his team there the following Sunday. At the same time the Indians had before them the proposal to play a post-season game in Oklahoma, where most of them live.

Levi was the first man to speak in favor of accepting the post season game. McDonald said. The game here will be Levi's last with Haskell.

Next spring he will go South
with the New York Americans
to try out for the first base job.

Since he will be a professional anyhow, when the major league training seasons open,
Levi literally gave $1000 to play
one more game with his Indian mates.

There are more East-West intersectional games scheduled for the 1925 season of the "big ten" than in an ordinary year. Chicago, Michtersectional contests booked. Illi-

CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—The schedule meeting of the Western Conference, to be held here Friday and Saturday, when the football dates
for 1925 will be agreed upon, promises to be an interesting scramble for games.

In addition to the schedule making, the big 10 coaches and faculty representatives will meet to vote
on amendments to the rules governing athletics, if any are presented for consideration. The program of the faculty representatives has not been made public, but they may consider abolishing the rule prohibiting post-season and intersectional games.

15 Teams to Compete.
By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Dec. 3.—Fifteen or more teams are expected to face the starting gun at Chicago's next six-day bicycle race, starting Feb. 11.
Paddy Harmon, manager of six-day races here, announced, as he departed for New York to view some of the foreign riders appearing there.

Chicago also will meet Pennsylvania next season, while Ohio State has been dickered for a game with a leading Eastern eleven.
Michigan already has booked a game with the Navy, while Wisconsin hopes to arrange a game with Cornell or Dartmouth.

With intersectional games becoming so popular, some of the less favored institutions in the conference, not equipped to play important games with Eastern opponents
probably will be cut off the various schedules.

HELD FOR DEATH OF 6-YEAR-OLD GIRL

Man Named by Monticau County Coroner's Jury Is Taken to Penitentiary for Safety.

From the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch. JEFFERSON CITY, Dec. 2.—Edward Sullivan, 23 years old, who was named by a Coroner's jury in California, Mo., late yesterday as the man responsible for the death of a 6-year-old California girl, through an alleged criminal attack, was placed in the penitentiary here last night by Monticau County officers for safe-keeping. They feared mob violence.

Although the attack is said to have occurred four weeks ago, it did not become known until shortly before the girl's death Monday afternoon. The child was a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dan Lehman, Sullivan, a mill worker, who had been a boarder at the Lehman home, has been in the Monticau County jail for three weeks serving a sentence of 30 days for common assault on Mrs. Lehman.

Mrs. Lehman testified at the inquest that the child's condition did not become known until shortly before her death. She asserted that the child had not told her parents of the alleged attack because she had been threatened with death if she revealed it. The common assault charge against Sullivan grew out of a demand by Mrs. Lehman that Sullivan pay a board bill, it was said. Sullivan was said to have become incensed and struck Mrs. Lehman.

Jacob Suffman, 55 years old, a cobbler, 806 North Second street, St. Charles, died at 8:30 o'clock yesterday morning as he stepped into the office of Dr. R. P. Wentker at 221 Morgan street in that city. Death was due to heart trouble.

The funeral will take place in St. Louis tomorrow.

A Musical Instrument As an Investment

It yields as sure, as generous, and as important a return upon the money spent as the dollars which are put in lands, stocks and bonds.

It pays dividends in daily pleasure; it promotes happiness in the home; it educates and inspires.

Pleasure, happiness, education, inspiration—are all as necessary to efficient work and successful accomplishment as clothes and food. A musical instrument should be regarded, therefore, as a necessary investment, and the most thoughtful care should be given to its selection.

The readers of this newspaper do not lack for wise direction and expert assistance in this matter, for the Post-Dispatch publishes more Musical Instrument Advertising than all other St. Louis newspapers combined.

You may or may not be a judge of musical instruments, but by following the Musical Instrument Advertising in the Post-Dispatch, you will acquire a valuable knowledge. You will know the merits of many makes.

Do not be without some sort of music in your home. The boys and girls, father and mother, all need it. Nothing adds quite so much to home happiness.

Another suggestion—if there is a handsome Christmas present to be bought, or a wedding in your family, no gift could be more appreciated or give more lasting pleasure than the gift of a Musical Instrument.

Use the musical instrument advertising in these columns as a guide to the right selection—it gives you the widest choice of the best values.

ADVERTISMENT A PIMPLY SKIN NEEDS SULPHUR

Any breaking out of the skin on face, neck, arms or body is overcome quickly by applying Mentho-Sulphur. The pimples seem to dry right up and go away, declares a noted skin specialist.

Nothing has ever been found to take the place of sulphur as a pimple remover. It is harmless and inexpensive. Just ask any druggist for a small jar of Rowles Mentho-Sulphur and use it like cold cream.

"CORN" Lift Off—No Pain!

Doesn't hurt one bit! Drop a little "Freezone" on an aching corn, instantly that corn stops hurting, then shortly you lift it right off with fingers.

Your druggist sells a tiny bottle of "Freezone" for a few cents, sufficient to remove every hard corn, soft corn, or corn between the toes, and the foot calluses, without soreness or irritation.

ADVERTISMENT BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga.

PRIEST'S CANDIDACY DEPENDS ON BYRNES

Former Judge Likely to Seek Mayorality if Other Decides
Not to Enter.

Efforts of Democrats and independents to interest former Federal Judge Henry S. Priest in the Democratic mayoralty nomination may be productive of result if James W. Byrnes, who was defeated by Mayor Kiel four years ago, does not enter the race.

In his unsuccessful quest for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination last August, Priest carried the city by 654 over George H. Moore, former Internal Revenue Collector; Dr. Arthur W. Nelson, the nominee, and Floyd Jacobs of Kansas City. It is known that he drew heavily from Republican strength in the South Side wards and Democratic leaders feel that he would make an excellent race in the mayoralty campaign.

Traged Byrnes to Run.
There is this in the way. It was Priest who first interested Byrnes in running for Mayor four years ago and since he is responsible for the political aspirations of Byrnes to that degree, his friends say he would not enter the field if Byrnes decided to run again.

Byrnes would like to run again in view of the fact that four years ago he lost to Mayor Kiel by only 966 votes when he was virtually unknown politically. It is generally believed that upon his decision will rest the matter of Priest's answer to the insistence from friends that he become a candidate.

Friends of Priest would put him forward as a candidate under a program of sound business administration. He regards the affairs of St. Louis as a business corporation as the foremost consideration and while recognizing the necessary political aspects of it, his position, it is known, is that they should be subordinated.

Other Democrats Mentioned.
Democrats mentioned as prospects for the nomination have not stated their positions on the matter with the exception of W. Frank Carter, attorney and chairman of the Citizens' Bond Issue Supervisory Committee, and W. Palmer Clarkson, president of the Chamber of Commerce. Both have declined to permit their names to be used.

William L. Igou, former Congressman from the Eleventh District, has been sought as a candidate but has not told even close friends how he stands. Lawrence McDaniel, former Circuit Attorney, is non-committal, but his friends say that he will certainly seek the nomination.

Joseph J. Mestres, chairman of the Democratic City Central Committee, said he would like to see Priest or Carter enter the race. With Carter's refusal definite, Mestres is concentrating on Priest.

Bonus for Aloe.
Friends of Louis P. Aloe, former president of the Board of Aldermen, are distributing cards with this message: "Aloe—Let's bring him out." The reference is to a general attempt being made to have Aloe become a candidate for the Republican nomination for Mayor.

Aloe has not made any reply to the requests and has said that he will not make up his mind about making the race until after the first of the year.

Republican politicians, other than those committed to Mayor Kiel, believe he would make an admirable candidate, and it is believed that he would be supported by Edmund Koehn, City Collector.

FRIENDS OF ASQUITH URGE HIS ELEVATION TO PEERAGE

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, Dec. 3.—A number of influential persons, recognizing the general regret over former Premier Asquith's temporary elimination from public life through his defeat in the last election, have taken the occasion of his holiday in Egypt to agitate again that he be lifted above all political bickerings by the gift of a peerage in the King's New Year honors list.

There is no doubt that this would be a popular move, for the Liberal leader is acclaimed among all classes as a great statesman, and there is a general feeling that the gift of an earldom would be only a fair reward for his services to the country, extending over nearly half a century.

On the other hand, within his own party many are opposed to the supreme leadership of David Lloyd George, which would inevitably follow Asquith's elevation to the House of Lords, while others object to the elevation as a violation of the Liberal principle that the upper house is "undemocratic" because it is not elective.

H. M. DAWES EXPECTED TO HEAD OIL COMPANY
By the Associated Press.
COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 3.—Henry M. Dawes, who yesterday indicated a desire to resign as Comptroller of the Currency is expected to become president of the Pure Oil Co., succeeding Beiman G. Dawes. It was announced today at the oil company offices here.

Henry Dawes has been identified with the oil business for more than 20 years. He is a brother of Vice President-elect Dawes. The Pure Oil Co. is one of the oldest independent oil companies in the United States. Its properties are valued in excess of $200,000,000.

Dawes said yesterday in Washington that he wanted to accept a business offer.

FRENCH "SLUSH" FUND INQUIRY Commission to Investigate Expenditures in Parliamentary Election.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, Dec. 3.—A special commission of inquiry into the use of "slush funds" by all of the political parties was created yesterday. The commission is to inquire into the amounts of money spent by Deputies in the parliamentary campaign last May.

The commission is to be composed of 18 Deputies, who are supposed to be impartial.

porters of the Government and 15 members from the opposition. The names of the commissioners will come up for ratification in the Chamber of Deputies on Friday and the commission will begin its work on Saturday.

THIRD INSTALLMENT

NEVER and more aggressive houses were springing up everywhere, marking a recent real estate boom. Their red brick facades, red sandstone trimmings and bulging towers gave them the look of monsters, flushed with anger, swollen with righteous indignation. On the whole Adamah preferred them to the pallid gray mansions with balconies of iron filigree. They had the air of wealth. Only rich men could have walked up their sandstone steps and banged their stained glass doors.

And such a philosophic tour had brought him one morning to the door of All Souls' Church. . . . The nigger mammy totin' that baby across both hands like it was a million dollars worth of pound cake. Gosh. . . . And look at the lace on the baby!

On a Sunday morning when Ma had taken Jo to her Baptist Church and Adamah had stayed home, because his shoes weren't blacked, he wandered up to the fort. Throwing himself among the dry grasses, from his height enjoyed a twisted view of the city which enchanted him with its palaces. Life to the small boy is usually objective. It is the romance of action. But sometimes into his dream comes a flash of self-analysis, transitory and harmless as heat-lightning. What had got into him that day when he saw the baby with all its lace being carried into the big church? Gosh, thought he. It was only a baby after all. And what would he be doing, when he was a man, walking into a christening with a stovepipe hat on, just to have his baby sprinkled by one of them high-toned preachers? He'd have something better 'n that to do with his time. Yes, sir!

He would. He knew he would.

CHAPTER V.

One afternoon at the hour of what and chess Dr. Furness, who had officiated at the birth of Sallie Livingston Peak's three children, sat sipping his bourbon with Dr. Wiggin, the clergyman who had christened them. They occupied their accustomed corner in the old Pickwick Club, which still retained something of its ante-bellum air, conceding little to the hurried Yankeeism of 1898. On the occasions when Dr. Furness and Dr. Wiggin sat thus, topeing like gentlemen, important things were settled in the affairs of that society which they served with honor, the one ministering to its body, the other to its soul.

"I tell you, Alec," the clergyman was rolling out in his best pulpit voice, "we can't hold out forever. Some day the distillers and the brewers will be marrying our daughters and coming into gentlemen's houses just like."

"Into the Satsuma clan?" asked the doctor with an incredulous smile.

"Satsuma what?" counter-questioned Dr. Wiggin. "You damn our society with a Tine pagan name." "Why not?" At this the little doctor rolled his big head on his short neck. "The South has always been pagan, sir, Henry, you old rascal, you're just as pagan as ecclesiastical law will allow."

"Take care, Alec—Dr. Wiggin began it severely, then he smiled. "But where does the Satsuma clan come in?"

"It's Japanese," admitted Dr. Furness, "but it applies. The Satsuma clan conveys ideas: the right to rule, hereditary privilege, unquestioned authority. I'm only a half-breed Satsuma," he went on with a smile, and Dr. Wiggin knew what he meant—the clergyman had been a carpet-bagger, arriving after the Civil War. "I'm only a half-breed, but I realize my power."

Dr. Wiggin folded his hands; it was like the clasping of a shell tight around his broad person. Dr. Furness, he thought, was talking too much for the fashionable physician of his highly respectable parish. But Alec was a character. He had always been loved for his whimsical turns—and Satsuma clan was a good phrase.

"But royal succession," persisted the doctor, "is a matter of biology, the way about everything is. Satsuma chiefs breed themselves out of existence. The cell gets bored with easy living and decided to commit suicide. That's what happened to Cato Livingston."

"He became a cell, you mean?" asked Dr. Wiggin, blinking his little elephant's eyes.

"No. He became a collection of bored cells. The brain cells went on strike and commanded Cato to wipe out the whole mess, themselves included, with a 44 bullet."

"The newspapers called it a failure in tobacco," said Dr. Wiggin. "Of course. De mortuis nil nisi—and you preached the sermon."

"I never thought Cato would come to that," reflected Dr. Wiggin.

her horse up the courthouse steps—on a bet, of course. But it's a long flight of steps!"

"Sam sent her a bucket of calf's brains as a wedding present," said Dr. Wiggin solemnly. "I always thought it a very poor joke."

"Just another case of the weakening cell. In the old days Garrett would have called Sam out. The Satsumas don't fight like they used to."

"That's lucky," reflected Dr. Wiggin. "Seems to me Sallie's been lots quieter for several years."

"Children," said Dr. Furness. "Seriously?" Dr. Wiggin raised his heavy brows.

"Biologically. She married too young. That's one of the grudges I hold against you, Henry, you lead these little girls from the cradle to the altar and expect me to repair the damage. Sallie did surprisingly well with the first two, but the last one's given her trouble."

"But that was five years ago. Let's see—I christened her in 1881."

"Cato's death was a real shock to Sallie. She was enough like the old man to care a lot for him. And the youngest baby?"

"Let me see. There are three of 'em, aren't there?"

"You ought to know. They all go to your Sunday school."

"I remember that little red-headed one."

"They're all reddish-haired like the Livingstones. Can't you remember what you sprinkled holy water on? But I know the one you mean. The little one. She'll be out as a pony up the City Hall steps before she's 21, or I'll never bet again."

Dr. Furness finished his second glass of Pearl of Nelson, arose heavily and consulted his fat gold watch. It was half past five.

"While we're on the subject," he drawled, "it reminds me that I've promised to see Sallie before supper time."

So they separated, these two middle-aged men whose professions, polar opposites intellectually, equally concern the two honest moments of civilized life—births and death. By force of theology on the one hand and Biology on the other each had contributed his share toward holding the Peake family upon its eminence.

CHAPTER VI.

When Flora Lee Peake was five years old she and her sister, Margaret, were enough alike to be twins—twins who, by some freak of Dr. Furness' pet biology, had been born in different sizes. To say that they came into the world like dolls would be a spreading insult; but in infancy there was a bisque perfection about the famous Peake sisters. At a very early age the dolls became imps and a continental scandal to their elder brother, Roland; he was a good fellow, a good smoker, a good fighter who never varied a shade from the conventional coloring of his class.

Roland Peake was 10 when Flora Lee was 5; Margaret, aged 8, was the spirited sister. Like a little rebel she stood up to Roland, naming his tyrannies by their awful names. The black jury of nursemaids, who sat on a bench in Helicon Park, tried the cases of the day, used to refer to Margaret as the child who favored her Ma. "She so ba-ad!" old Linda would moan proudly. She should have known, since at that period in the development of the Peake sisters Linda surmised—not without trepidation—that Flora Lee would turn out to be studious and thoughtful. Linda was a good nurse but a poor prophetess. A temporary fault in her digestion gave to Flora Lee a look which counterfeited spirituality; before the year was over old Linda discovered her mistake and renewed her faith in a physical Satan.

Stature aside, the Peake girls differed only in subtleties. Physically Flora Lee was a shade the finer; a purer blond, softer skinned, smaller boned. Her hair was not so heavy as Margaret's, but it held the pallid gold of an Italian figure.

Margaret's eyes were the more beautiful; they had the candid quality of crystal against warm gray velvet. Flora Lee's were shot with hazel—the youthful portrait of Gen. Horatio Peake, Continental Army, showed eyes like hers, accounting possibly for his record as a duelist and an instigator of duels. From infancy that dash of hazel gave Flora Lee an advantage.

Old ladies of the town will still tell you stories of Roland Peake, gang leader and gentleman, a straight-jlimbed boy who had inherited good looks from both sides of the house. If a corner statue in the row of row along the Square after the Centennial Exposition—was pulled down amidst muffled shrieks, or if a garbage can was casually dumped into the bazaar of the unpopular Dr. Vesey, or if an ice cream freezer was abstracted from Miss Sunshine Buckner's back stoop the day of her All Souls' Auxiliary reception, the Helicon Park neighborhood would waste no time in searching for the criminal. Punitive expeditions would go directly for Rol Peake.

The Satsuma clan settled its own disputes. It never quite condensed its members, young or old. As for Rol Peake, swashbuckler at the age of 9, he was commended for his spirit. He promised to be a brilliant improvement on his father, who had seldom shown his mettle. General Horatio Peake, who rode a white horse in the Continental Army; Colonel Conde Peake, who strode a big bay in the Mexican War; the second Horatio Peake, who tamed a coal black charger and took orders from no living man but Lee, sir. . . . These, the grandfathers, had bequeathed to Rol Peake a heritage of glory, a good spring board, but a rickety easy chair. In his youth he was associated with success of a gallant and showy nature. He appealed to the average mind. Even Judge Peake, his living grandfather, was found unworthy of Rol's effulgent future. Once the youngest captain in the Confederate Army, the Judge, since his second failure to achieve the United States Senate, was settling down; settling down into a silent, rather crabbed old man, merely another picturesque feature in his fine historical library.

CHAPTER VII.

In Rol Peake's boyhood Gen. Hunter Livingston still held for himself an 18-acre tract of land converging on Helicon Park's statue-guarded residence. Gen. Livingston was the only mortal being who managed to inspire the Peakes with any degree of awe.

General and Mrs. Livingston, who were to the children's eyes far older landmarks than the beetling cliffs along the river, held aloof from the world and made laws according to their own pleasure. It was the General's wish that boys and girls of the Livingston kin (and a very few of their friends) be allowed to enter the grounds and play there during the day, and hours. His rose and clematis hedges, running all around the domain, concealed the sharp teeth of barred wire gates were supposed to be guarded by negroes; a broad vein of tolerance in the African nature made possible a small adventure in the weaves thimble into the web of their story.

Witches Broth.

Select a plump young broiling chicken and joint it, after washing and preparing as usual. Cover with two quarts of water and add to the water a half bay leaf, a sliced bud of garlic, a chopped onion, four or more stalks of celery cut fine, a little parsley, a tablespoonful of raisins, a minced pepper and three slices of lemon with pits removed. Cover and cook gently until the chicken is very tender, then take out the chicken, remove the meat from the bones and throw bones and trimmings back into the broth. Cook half an hour longer then strain the broth through a fine sieve. Set to cool, then take off all the grease. Prepare a brown roux of well browned flour, reheat the soup and thicken to the consistency of cold honey, add the giblets chopped fine and a tablespoonful of finely cut truffles. This is a very rich and hearty soup. The truffles come in small round cans just for such use.

America is the first nation to build a racing airplane capable of flying at a speed of 266 miles an hour.

Recent tendency in advertising and fashion editing is the appeal frankly and directly to the business woman. In the past dealers in women's apparel and other caterers to women's wants have assumed, or pretended to assume, that the desire of the working girl was to look as much as possible like the lady of leisure and that what would please the latter was sure to please the former.

"I just sold this same model to Miss C—," the banker's daughter. "How often and with what good effect this familiar device is employed by the saleswoman to clinch a sale over which the working woman has been hesitating."

The working girl is flattered at having been mistaken for one possessing the air and means of a banker's daughter, and after that it is easy to disclaim the distinction and get down to confidences with the saleswoman.

This basis of flattery on the part of salespersons is not founded upon a false psychology, of course. It hasn't been, it never will be, exactly fashionable to be a working woman and all women would prefer to be fashionable. However, times are changing and it is a great deal more nearly fashionable to be a working girl than it used to be. One meets in business these days the woman who is merely seeking economic independence; the lady who has become bored with having nothing to do and so seeks something "worth while"; the college woman who is ambitious to put into practice the theories she has been absorbing; the active young creature yearning for self-expression or an outlet for excess energy; the avid one who would pit her wits against those she fancies are getting ahead of her in the market place rather than in society.

None of these is the type who used to lament, "I wouldn't work if I didn't have to." Indeed, so rarely does one hear this sentiment that it seems to belong to a past generation. Seldom any more

By MARGUERITE MARTYN.

A RECENT tendency in advertising and fashion editing is the appeal frankly and directly to the business woman. In the past dealers in women's apparel and other caterers to women's wants have assumed, or pretended to assume, that the desire of the working girl was to look as much as possible like the lady of leisure and that what would please the latter was sure to please the former.

"I just sold this same model to Miss C—," the banker's daughter. "How often and with what good effect this familiar device is employed by the saleswoman to clinch a sale over which the working woman has been hesitating."

The working girl is flattered at having been mistaken for one possessing the air and means of a banker's daughter, and after that it is easy to disclaim the distinction and get down to confidences with the saleswoman.

This basis of flattery on the part of salespersons is not founded upon a false psychology, of course. It hasn't been, it never will be, exactly fashionable to be a working woman and all women would prefer to be fashionable. However, times are changing and it is a great deal more nearly fashionable to be a working girl than it used to be.

One meets in business these days the woman who is merely seeking economic independence; the lady who has become bored with having nothing to do and so seeks something "worth while"; the college woman who is ambitious to put into practice the theories she has been absorbing; the active young creature yearning for self-expression or an outlet for excess energy; the avid one who would pit her wits against those she fancies are getting ahead of her in the market place rather than in society.

None of these is the type who used to lament, "I wouldn't work if I didn't have to." Indeed, so rarely does one hear this sentiment that it seems to belong to a past generation. Seldom any more does one encounter the "lady in reduced circumstances" or the girl or woman "suddenly thrown upon her own resources." Rarely nowadays is one expected to sympathize with the woman who must earn her own living. On the contrary, the girl with a good job is apt to be envied, and not only by those with jobs not so good. The old jokes about the working girl who is trying to pass herself off as a lady of leisure are passé, indeed.

With women working from choice as well as from necessity, and with all women wishing to be fashionable there come to be something of the element of fashion in the situation. It is a little odd, then, that these advertisers and fashion dispensers who are expected to be several leaps ahead of the times should have been so slow in responding to the developments of a real class consciousness among women who work for wages, salary or income, as the case may be.

It is being recognized of late, however. The very smartest fashion magazines are featuring "business women's apparel" and telling us how to be smart though employed, rather than how always to resemble the lilies of the field. And the smartest shops are advertising such articles as "a slim young frock for the office debutante," an "up-betimes frock in which to beat the time clock," "an office frock for the day with a luncheon pause and listen to her valuable engagement," a "coat that will serve for evening as well as daytime wear," "a frock for service," etc., etc.

There is a note of apology yet in some of the advertisements and styles addressed to women wage earners, you will observe, but at least a beginning is made and if imperious Dame Fashion is about to acknowledge that there is such a thing as a working woman and there is some hope of her looking smart as well as merely respectable.

Looking at the examples of coats, frocks, hats, etc., especially commended by the fashion authorities to the business woman (some of which examples I have from these various fashions for reproduction with it strikes one they are different from what we are used to see worn by women, in business or otherwise, in the streets. They are really as well as fashionable into more than all along.

However that may be, we should joyously forgive her past remissness and at all times pause and listen to her valuable suggestions.

SOLUTION OF YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE

HOW TO SOLVE A CROSS WORD PUZZLE.

Each number in the puzzle indicates the position of the first letter
of a word.
Each word reads from left to right (horizontal) or downward (vertical), according to position.
Lettered in correctly, words that cross will interlock.
Each number in the white squares also refers to a definition
in the accompanying table.
Each definition suggests a word possessing the exact number of letters to fit the white space allotted to it.
Each white space is to receive one letter only. Words start only in numbered squares.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Mailing Candy.
When mailing home-made candy,
wrap each piece in waxed paper before packing it in the box. It is the only way to be certain of its safe arrival.

A Loose Castor.
A narrow strip of adhesive tape
wound tightly around the stem of the loose castor until it fits the casing will keep it from continually slipping out.

Safety First.
I have a tin box, in which a pound of coffee came, and when I buy matches they are placed in there and the lid clamped on. Then I know no marauding mouse can set my house on fire by chewing at the match during the wee small hours.

Good Planning.
Do you picture your dinner as well as combine it satisfactorily as to taste? A combination of colors in vegetables makes the dinner
more appetizing just because it pleases the eye.

Children's Bedtime Story

By Thornton W. Burgess

Mrs. Reddy Proves to Be Right

When things seem very far from bright
'Tis better to be wrong than right.

—Mrs. Reddy Fox.

"Pooh!" replied Reddy. "All the trouble is over already"

MRS. REDDY didn't thoroughly enjoy the chicken dinner
Reddy Fox had brought home.
"I feel it in my bones that trouble is going to come from this,"
said she. "Why didn't you keep away from that henhouse, as you said you would?"
"Pooh!" replied Reddy. "All the trouble is over already. I did mean to keep away from that henhouse, but when I found myself ever there the chance to get another chicken was too good to miss. There is nothing to worry about now. I led that dog way off in another direction and lost him there. I promise you I'll keep away from that henhouse until this affair has been forgotten. So enjoy your dinner and stop worrying."

But Mrs. Reddy didn't stop worrying. As she had said, she had a feeling that trouble was coming from that stolen dinner. She didn't know why she had that feeling. But have it she did, and she couldn't get rid of it. Reddy laughed at her and made fun of her, but this made no difference.
"Just wait and see," she would reply.

If Mrs. Reddy had been down
at Farmer Brown's house early the next morning and could have understood the things that were said there she would have known that she was right. There "as a visitor at Farmer Brown's. It was the farmer whose chickens Reddy Fox had been stealing. When he left he took Bowser the Hound
with him. Farmer Brown's Boy watched them go and his face wore a troubled look. That farmer had borrowed Bowser the Hound to hunt the Fox that had been stealing his chickens. More thief," thought Farmer Brown's Boy. "Even if it should be that he is the thief, I don't want him killed. I wish Dad hadn't said that they could hunt on our land."

He said as much to Farmer Brown. Farmer Brown looked grave. "I know how you feel,"
said he, "but if Foxes living on our land have been stealing chickens from our neighbors we have no right to protect those Foxes.
Our neighbors have the right to protect their property just as we have the right to protect ours. If the Fox who stole our neighbors'
chickens has come over onto our land our neighbors should be allowed to follow him."

Farmer Brown's Boy had to admit that his father was right. But the first chance he got he slipped away up to the Old Pasture, to the home of Reddy Fox and Mrs.
Reddy.

Don't Worry about Gray Hair

This Clean, Colorless Liquid Will Restore the Original Shade

Thousands of people have quickly banished grayness and have restored the original shade to their hair with the remarkable preparation known as Kolor-Bak.
Physicians and scientists know
that gray hair is hair that has ceased to receive its normal supply of coloring matter or pigment from certain tiny cells in the scalp because these cells have become inactive. No matter what the cause,
it is amazing to see how the gray-ness disappears when Kolor-Bak is used. It is the best known substitute for the natural pigmentation.
It also banishes dandruff and stops itching of the scalp and falling hair. If you are gray, Kolor-Bak is all you need to make your hair look "young" again. No need to furnish a sample of your hair—no

THE REVUE

OUR Congressmen and Senators resume their daily chores. Of drawing pay in every way. From Uncle Sammy's wallet. For being off-side when he ran. The justly celebrated can. With label scratched will be attached To Senator La Follette.

While no committees he may grace, He'll fill his customary place. And be the guy that plays the Fly To Brother Butler's Ointment. For R. La Follette has a way Of getting in his little say. In words that bring a bitter sting. Despite his non-appointment.

His late lamented running mate, 'Tis said will not receive the gate And hit the skid for what he did. When plots began to thicken. As in the case of all the Prods, Who worship false and phoney gods, For Burton K., a feast they'll lay. Of fatted calf and chicken.

I see where photographs can go Across the sea by radio, A patent queer, designed to cheer The radio fanatic. Now anyone can take his face And send it whirling into space. Across the seas and hills and trees, Providing there's no static.

A HARDWOOD FINISH. See where the Millers floored the Indiana Flooring Co. soccer team. The Indiana Floor outfit hails from New York and is composed mostly of Swedes. Hence its name.

Paris wants a new face for the circus clown. We might send 'em one by radio.

The old-style clown of our forefathers is good enough for us. Let him alone.

Next thing they'll be wanting to change the mug of Santa Claus.

QUITE SO.

Billy Bayne of the Browns led the American League in batting. Indicating that as a pitcher Billy has the makings of a pretty fair stickler.

The real leader, however, was none other than Babe Ruth, who played in 153 games. Indicating the Babe has added a few singles to his regular repertoire.

Babe has been wintering out on the coast and hitting .400 in the news photographs.

He even had his picture taken with Doug. Fairbanks and Walter Johnson, thereby spiking the rumor that Babe was slipping.

Because the Yanks failed to win the pennant many thought that the Bambino was through. Such is fame in the big leagues.

We look to see Babe at the old stand next summer spreading an epidemic of sore arms among the pitching fraternity, as usual.

TOO TRUE.

FULL many a pitcher views him with alarm

When Babe appears upon the pitching hill.

And straightway starts to nurse an ailing arm

Or suddenly is taken very ill.

Code Names Introduced in Case of Alleged Conspiracy on Contracts.

By PAUL Y. ANDERSON,
A Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

CHICAGO, Dec. 4.—The name of Mrs. Carolyn Votaw, sister of the late President Harding and wife of the Superintendent of Federal Prisons, entered today into the record of the trial of Charles R. Forbes and John W. Thompson, St. Louis contractor, charged with conspiring to defraud the Government on contracts for hospitals for veterans.

It was injected by Elias H. Mortimer, star prosecuting witness whose wife is alleged to have conspired for Forbes, former Veterans Bureau chief, a friendship which transformed Mortimer and Forbes from cronies into mortal enemies and caused Mortimer to turn Government evidence.

Over the objections of defense counsel, against "doing anything which might cause a scandal in high place," Judge Carpenter permitted the Government to introduce in evidence a letter written by Thompson to Mortimer, in which the names of Mrs. Votaw and Mrs. Forbes were connected.

The other outstanding feature of the day's session was testimony by Mortimer that Forbes listened to and approved the arrangement whereby he was to receive a cut of $50,000 out of the profit made on the construction of each of three Western soldiers' hospitals. Trip to West Coast.

Mortimer described a trip to the west coast made in July, 1932, by himself, Forbes, Mrs. Mortimer and others where they were joined, in turn, by James W. Black, now dead, who is alleged to have been Thompson's partner in the conspiracy, and by Charles H. Hays, another contractor.

In reply to questions, Mortimer testified that he had talked to Mrs. Votaw in Washington about the trip and she had been eager to go along. Mrs. Votaw, at the time, was in the Veterans Bureau. She is now in the Public Health Service. Mortimer intimated that Mrs. Votaw wanted to go in order to be near Forbes.

Mortimer started to say, concerning the conversation in which Mrs. Votaw's name was mentioned, that "Mrs. Forbes had threatened to throw Forbes out of a 19-story window" when Judge Carpenter interrupted him with the warning that such gossip was not part of the information sought from him. Mortimer finally was permitted to relate the conversation between himself, Thompson and Forbes when Forbes said he did not want Mrs. Votaw to know about the Western trip of the Veterans Bureau party to inspect Western hospital sites.

"Forbes had told me," Mortimer continued, "not to say anything." Mrs. Votaw about the trip, because he was afraid she might do something to interrupt our plan and, being a sister of the President and in the public service here, he was afraid it might cause talk. Here Government counsel offered in evidence Thompson's letter written from Washington, and signed to Mrs. Votaw, where the party had the dinner. Defense counsel protested vigorously. Col. Eastby-Smith, Federal attorney, said the letter was "scandalous and immaterial." Randolph Laughlin, of St. Louis, Thompson's counsel, declared that while there was nothing in the letter that the client objected to, he felt the court should read the letter before permitting it to be introduced as the cause of a scandal in high place.

Thompson's Letter. Judge Carpenter inspected the letter and saw no reason for withholding it. As a matter of fact, the letter merely informed Mortimer that Thompson had learned of the trial of Forbes and Mrs. Votaw, who had been behind, and cautioned Mortimer not to say anything which might be used against him.
